ANGLO-FRENCH PACT PROVIDES AGAINST ANY NAVAL RIVALRY

Memorandum Wired to London From Cannes Sets Out That Submarines Are Inapt in Attack or Defense and Says Competition Would Corrode Accord.

FRANCE'S SECURITY MADE BRITISH OBJECT

Resumption of Trade Relations With Russia One of Conditions to Arrangement; World Financial Corporation Approved at Council.

CANNES, Jan. 11.—The British memorandum of the proposed Anglo-French pact, which was telegraphed textually to London, has been made public here. The memorandum declares:

That Great Britain makes the security of France a problem of her own and that she will be ready again to throw in her forces as in 1914, if French soil is attacked.

Naval rivalry must be avoided by the two countries, sets forth the memorandum, which declares that the submarines have proved in four years' experience to be inapt in naval attack or defense and can be used only to prey upon the merchant marine. Naval competition, it is added, would corrode any accord.

Resumption of trade relations with Russia is declared by the memorandum to be indispensable to the recovery of Europe and the consent of France to Russian participation in the economic negotiations is made one of the conditions of the accord.

A copy of this British memorandum was handed to Premier Briand yesterday.

The document referred to in the foregoing is apparently the memorandum of the talk in London between Premier Lloyd George and Briand, regarding the proposed Anglo-French treaty. This meeting shortly preceded the Cannes conference. The text of the proposed treaty has not been made public, but its reported general terms have excited hostility in the French press that it was decided by Great Britain to make public the text of the memorandum after the British version of it had been submitted to Premier Briand.

Briand Demands Support. Premier Briand will go to Paris today to inform the French Cabinet as to the status of the negotiations here and to meet and answer criticism of certain groups of the opposition and to demand that the Chamber of Deputies support or reject him.

The principal differences between the Premier and the opposition, it is learned, are with regard to the new treaty of payment by Germany adopted by the Council of Experts but not yet ratified by the full council. France under these terms would receive less than under previous arrangements but a greater proportion in kind.

It is understood that considerable adverse criticism of Briand has developed in his Cabinet in connection with the proposed Anglo-French defensive alliance.

Harvey Is Out Again. George Harvey, American Ambassador to Great Britain, attended today a session of the Council, having almost completely recovered from the shock he suffered in an automobile accident on Monday. The members of the Council heartily congratulated him on his escape.

Representatives of the German Government have been summoned to appear this evening before the Allied reparations Commission to explain Germany's inability to meet her January and February reparations payments.

Financial Corporation. Approval by the council last night of the plan for formation of an international financial corporation leaves the reparations question as the most important item on the agenda.

No delays will be granted for the purpose of conferring with Berlin, and advice from the German cabinet and that the delegation has full powers to act in the name of its Government. The desire of Germany to participate in the consortium which is going to engage in the en-

BAT TAKES CENTER STAGE AT GRAND OPERA PERFORMANCE

Flies Over Actors and Philadelphia Audiences in Second Act of "Le Roi D'Ys."

By the Associated Press. PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 11.—An added character was seen last night at the Academy of Music in the presentation of Edouard Lalo's opera "Le Roi D'Ys" by the Metropolitan Opera Co. when a bat sailed forth from its nook backstage during the second act and took possession of the performance.

The bat, apparently disturbed by unfamiliar air waves, menaced the principals, who sang, nevertheless, bravely, and it varied the attack by swooping out over the audience, flying while women clutched their hair. After darting back to the stage, almost into the faces of Francis Alda and Jeanne Gordon, who were singing a duet, the bat glided behind the scenes to its retreat, credited with the greatest triumph since the Academy cat walked onto the stage during the death of Desdemona in "Othello" and turned the intended scene of tragedy into one of the most hilarious farces in Philadelphia's operatic annals.

DIAMOND, REPUTED TO BE THE WORLD'S LARGEST, IN NEW YORK

Smithsonian Institute Attache Arrives From British Guiana With Stone in Rough.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—What is believed will prove the largest diamond ever found in the Western Hemisphere was brought to this country yesterday by Prof. W. J. Lawrence of the Smithsonian Institute at Washington, who arrived from Trinidad on the Lamport and Holt steamship Vestris.

The diamond, which is in the rough, has not yet been weighed or measured. It was brought north in a sealed packet in care of the purser of the ship. It will be taken sometime tomorrow to the appraisers' store for appraisal.

The stone was found in British Guiana in what promises to be, according to Prof. Lawrence, a very productive diamond mine. The professor brought the number of smaller specimens with him.

LIBERTY AND VICTORY BONDS SHOW GAIN OVER YESTERDAY

$15,000,000 in Sales Transacted Although Price Is Highest in Year or More.

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—Investment demand for U. S. Government war issues, despite the fact they are at highest prices for a year or more, continued in enormous proportions on the Stock Exchange today.

Up to 1 o'clock, Liberty Bond and Victory Note sales approximated $15,000,000 par value. Trading was most extensive in Liberty 2d, 3d and 4th 4's.

Maximum quotations ran from 14 cents to 40 cents per $100 over yesterday's prices. The demand was stimulated by the increasing ease of money rates.

EGG PRICES HALF LAST YEAR'S

Eggs at wholesale and retail are selling in St. Louis for about 40 cents a dozen less than last January. The retail price at the opening of today's business ranged from 35 to 40 cents a dozen, according to grade and quality. The top price at this time last year was 80 cents a dozen.

The wholesale price made on the produce exchange yesterday was 28 cents a dozen, compared with 67 cents a year ago. This is the price to the jobber, who sells the eggs to the retailer at 32 to 35 cents a dozen. Dealers say the drop was caused by an unusual early start to the early start of the laying season in the recent warm weather.

Monmouth (Ill.) Man, 104, Dies By the Associated Press. MONMOUTH, Ill., Jan. 11.—Patrick Mahoney, 104 years old, born in County Cork, Ireland, March 17, 1818, died yesterday at his home near here. Two weeks ago he was hurt in a fall.

SCHACHNER TELLS OF SETTLING WITH SEVERAL CLIENTS

Examination of Bankrupt Broker Discloses He Had Made "Numerous Deliveries" of Stocks.

TWO CASES HANDLED BY CIRCUIT ATTORNEY

Automobile, Not Listed Among Assets but Claimed as Such by Trustee, Sold for $800.

W. L. Schachner, bankrupt broker, who maintained offices in the Central National Bank Building, said yesterday, under examination before Referee in Bankruptcy Coles, that he had been making "numerous deliveries" to the Circuit Attorney to satisfy clients who were asking that he be compelled to deliver stocks for which they had paid.

An inquiry today of Circuit Attorney Siderer disclosed that Schachner had settled two claims through that office, one in May and one in June last, several months prior to the filing of his bankruptcy petition.

Other facts developed during his examination by Referee Coles and J. M. Lashly, attorney for G. F. Bent-rup, trustee, were:

Three days after Trustee Bent-rup notified Coles's Garage at 5822 McPherson avenue, not to permit two Hudson automobiles kept there by Schachner to leave the garage, Schachner sold one of the cars, a 1918 model, for $800 cash, part of which he spent in paying personal bills, banking the remainder. The automobiles were listed by Schachner as assets of his company but are claimed by the trustee as such.

COAST GUARDS ARE ON LOOKOUT FOR RUN-ING SUBMARINE

Cape May Fishermen Report Craft Seen With Small Boats Plying Around.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—Officials at the Atlantic City, N. J., Jan. 11.—In street and winds coast guards were keeping a sharp lookout for a run-ning submarine reported hovering off this port.

Two Cape May fishermen first reported the craft sighting with several small boats plying around.

As no United States submarines were reported in this vicinity it is thought the undersea craft might have brought liquor from the Bahamas.

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—Officials at the New York Navy Yard were inclined to chuckle today at the report that a submarine was running off the Jersey coast.

Navy officers pointed to the difficulty of run rummers obtaining a submarine, as the United States Navy has sold none and none is believed to have been manufactured in this country for other than war purposes under navy jurisdiction.

MUNICH AUDIENCE HOOTS AND HISSES AMERICAN NAMES IN PLAY

By the Associated Press. BERLIN, Jan. 11.—Munich theater-goers are still touchy on the subject of America, it appears from an incident just reported here.

The Neue Berliner Zeitung told us an audience in the Bavarian capital fairly raised the roof in objecting to the American background and American names being used in a new theatrical production. They hooted and hissed and stamped, and finally the performance was stopped.

The authorities, when the manager was brought before them, forbade him from producing the play unless the scenes were placed in some other country than the United States. The versatile producer readily complied and laid his scenes in the Caucasus. The name of one character was changed from "Smith" to "Smirski" and that of "Gladys Chicago, Dollar Princess," to "Marsha Petrograd, millionaire's daughter."

CELEBRATORS TOOK 600 PIECES OF SILVERWARE FROM HOTEL

The Hotel Jefferson yesterday inserted an advertisement in the Post-Dispatch asking that persons who took silverware from the New Year's eve return it by mail and save embarrassment, as an inspector had reported the names of persons at tables from which the articles were missing.

The hotel superintendent said that more than 600 pieces of silverware, nearly all spoons, were taken New Year's eve. They were valued at about $200. So far, no one has returned any of the silverware.

FORD PLANS 75-MILE-LONG MUSCLE SHOALS TOWNSITE AND EXPECTS NO PROFITS

Manufacturer's Scheme, if Government Grants Lease for a Century, Is but First Move in a Vast Project of Development.

By the Associated Press. DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 11.—If Henry Ford obtains possession of the Muscle Shoals project in Alabama, he will take immediate steps to make that part of the South one of the industrial centers of the country, the Associated Press learned today.

The Muscle Shoals plan of Ford contemplates one of the greatest undertakings in the history of industrial America, it became known. Ford proposes to make the Muscle Shoals region. It would be made up of a number of large towns or small cities. This is in line with the manufacturer's view that men and their families should live in small communities where benefits of rural or near-rural life would not be entirely lost.

Wants Lease for Century. Ford's proposal to the Government includes leasing of the property for 100 years. But before the expiration of half that time he proposes to turn the completed project over to the people of the district or to the Government in such a way that no one in the future will be able to make a personal profit from the undertaking. He will arrange that neither he nor any of his heirs may realize any monetary benefit from the Muscle Shoals plants or the power developed, it became known today.

Eventually, in Ford's opinion, the Government will be able to support itself, thereby revolutionizing the financial system of the country.

Ford expects to leave here about noon tomorrow for Washington to confer with Secretary Weeks regarding his proposal for leasing the Alabama plant. He will be accompanied by his engineers and others who have made a close study of the proposal.

Ready to Commence Work. If the Government accepts his bid, work on Muscle Shoals will start at once. The nitrate and other plants would be run by steam power, pending the time the great dam, that will require about two years to build, has harnessed the water at this point. Then would follow rapid development, in the opinion of Ford, within a comparatively few years an industrial center greater than Detroit would have been built up.

Ford believes the muscle shoals plan, if consummated, will be the start toward development of the Mississippi River Valley. The manufacturer believes this valley could "run the United States" if the water now going to waste could be utilized.

Details of the Charges. The assault to kill charge grows out of the shooting of J. D. Williams by the robbers in their flight. The robbery indictment is understood to be based on the testimony given by the St. Louis men, learning that an automobile left by him in Bandy's barn.

Shiffert Wilson's bond was fixed at $18,000, which was given by eight Bond County farmers.

Mrs. Brown says the accused men met at her home after the robbery and divided the loot. She said she hid the bonds in a kettle which they placed above the ceiling of a bedroom in her home.

None of Loot Recovered. When she and officials went there they found that the place had been ransacked and the contents of the kettle removed by tearing off part of the weatherboarding. It is believed that St. Louis men, learning that some of the loot was concealed at the house, robbed the robbers. Brown was located in Tennessee and came without requisition. An effort will be made to get him to confirm his wife's story.

Battleson is said to have made a statement implicating six others in the actual robbery, some of them St. Louisans.

None of the stolen money or bonds has been recovered, but it is expected that information given by Battleson will lead to some of it.

MAN, MYSTERIOUSLY SHOT BY UNIDENTIFIED ASSAILANT, DIES

Peddler Told Police Stranger Fired on Him After Asking Where Partner Was.

Hyman Prosnansky, 45 years old, 1127 North Nineteenth street, a peddler, died at 1 p. m. today at the city hospital from a wound received at 6:30 p. m. yesterday when he was shot in the right breast by an unidentified man as he was backing his wagon into a stable in the rear of 1445 O'Fallon street.

Prosnansky told the police he had just stepped off the wagon and was at the head of his horse when the man stepped from the shadow of the stable and asked him where his partner was. Prosnansky said his partner was not there and the man fired. Neighbors who heard the shot approached and the man fled. Prosnansky was unable to say whether he was white or black.

GRAIN FOR RUSSIAN FAMINE ZONE TO BE SHIPPED AT COST

Agreement Is Reached at Conference of Hoover and Lusk With the President.

Constable at Greenville Also Among Those Accused of Bank Robbery by Grand Jury at Hillsboro.

FOUR ST. LOUISANS INCLUDED IN LIST

Action Result of Aid Given by Woman Who Said Part of Loot Was Divided at Her Home.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. HILLSBORO, Ill., Jan. 11.—John W. Wilson of Greenville, Sheriff of Bond County, was indicted yesterday by the Montgomery County Grand Jury on the charge of burglary and larceny, consisting in alleged complicity in the Panama (Ill.) bank robbery, Dec. 12, in which $36,000 in cash and bonds was taken.

The principal evidence against him, it is understood, is the statement of Mrs. Jerry Brown of Pocahontas, that the robbers, who met at her house after the robbery, set apart a share of the loot for the Sheriff. Sheriff Wilson asserts his innocence and has asked for an early trial.

In addition to Wilson, Constable Benjamin Battleson of Greenville, Jerry Brown of Pocahontas, Paul Durling and Johnson Mayfield of Greenville and Walter O'Malley of St. Louis have been indicted for burglary and larceny.

Durling, Battleson, Wilson and Mayfield also are charged with intent to kill. W. W. Bandy, a Bond County farmer, is charged with perjury. Three other St. Louis men are named in indictments but their names are withheld because they have not been arrested.

The assault to kill charge grows out of the shooting of J. D. Williams by the robbers in their flight. The robbery indictment is understood to be based on the testimony given by the St. Louis men, learning that an automobile left by him in Bandy's barn.

DEMOCRATS URGING VOTE TODAY IN MOVE TO UNSEAT NEWBERRY

Leaders of Party in Senate Revise Walsh Resolution to Declare Michigan Man's Place in That Body Vacant; Attitude of Five or Six Members Unknown.

UNDERWOOD ATTACKS REPUBLICAN CHIEFS

Charges That They "Determined to Buy a Seat" for Newberry, and Says Issue Is "Whether Republican Party Intends to Obey Law of Land."

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—National Republican leaders were charged by Senator Underwood of Alabama, Democratic leader in the Senate, today with having "determined to buy a seat" in the Senate for Truman H. Newberry, where retention of that seat is contested by Henry Ford, his Democratic opponent.

The Democratic leader, entering into the debate for the first time, declared that, as he saw the Newberry case, and as he believed the country viewed it, "the issue involved is whether the Republican party, as a party, intends to obey the law of the land."

Selection of Newberry as the Republican candidate was made not alone by Republican leaders in that State, but by national Republican leaders, Senator Underwood said.

Drafting of Newberry. "It has been said on the floor of the Senate that Mr. Newberry was drafted," continued Senator Underwood, "and he was drafted to make the fight in the party machinery. When the issue became doubtful, when the leaders saw that through the ordinary course of the campaign they could not win with Newberry, it was determined to buy the seat for him."

"That is true, they were determined to buy it. I do not know how much was spent, but I do know that Senator Newberry, standing at his place over there the day before yesterday, announced to the Senate that $195,000 was spent by his friends in that campaign. It probably was more."

"You know and I know when approximately $200,000 is spent for a candidate for the Senate in a primary or an election, the money was not spent for legitimate campaign purposes."

"It is seldom that you find a contested case so closely connected with the party organization as this," he went on. "I am not saying this as a matter of course, but I am saying it because it is a fact growing out of a condition which every man in this chamber must recognize."

Calling attention to the close situation in the Senate after the 1918 election, Senator Underwood said the Republicans got control, or ganked and took charge through a majority vote—that the seat being held by Senator Newberry, whose right to sit there has become a national issue."

Walsh Resolution. Democratic leaders, in conference shortly before noon, agreed upon a revision of the resolution by Senator Walsh of Montana to declare vacant the senatorial seat of Newberry. The new resolution, it was announced, would be introduced later in the day and an immediate vote urged.

The resolving clause of the new Democratic resolution follows: "Considering that it is against a sound public policy that huge sums of money should be spent for the nomination or election of a candidate for the United States Senate, and that such excessive sums were spent to secure Truman H. Newberry the Republican nomination as such candidate for the State of Michigan at the primary election in that State, and considering that the campaign for his nomination was conducted in gross and flagrant violation of the laws of the State of Michigan and in contravention of the statute of the United States, he is not entitled to a seat in this body."

SELPH MUST QUIT AS POSTMASTER ON DAY TERM EXPIRES

Inspector on Way Here to Take Charge Temporarily Jan. 18 in Case Successor Is Not Named Then.

Post-Dispatch Bureau. No. 20 Wyatt Building. WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—Inspector Caln of the Postoffice Department will arrive in St. Louis today with instructions to take charge of the postoffice there on the morning of Jan. 18 if the successor to Postmaster Selph has not been appointed and taken office by that time.

Selph's term will expire next Tuesday, Jan. 17. The decision of the department not to continue him in office beyond that date, announced yesterday by First Assistant Postmaster-General Work, is due to the report recently made by two inspectors of the service recommending that Selph be discharged. A summary of this report, which upheld a number of charges brought against Selph by former employees, was published in the Post-Dispatch last Sunday.

A force of inspectors is now at work in St. Louis getting ready to turn the office over to Selph's successor. Selph, however, is still nominally in charge and will remain so till the end of his term.

Babler Interceded for Selph. Intercession by Senator Reed, Democrat, and by some Missouri Republican politicians has thus far failed to induce the Postoffice Department in its decision to replace Postmaster Selph with an inspector from Washington.

Following the announcement that the term of Selph would expire this course because of the charges made against Selph by two inspectors who investigated his office last summer, telegrams were received by the Postoffice Department from Jacob Babler, Republican National Committeeman for Missouri, and from William Sacks of St. Louis, asking that Selph be permitted to serve during a possible interregnum.

In reply to Babler and Sacks, it was authoritatively learned today, a telegram has been sent from the Department saying that Selph's service will terminate coincidentally with the expiration of the term for which he was appointed.

This will stand as the decision of the department unless it should be overruled by the President.

Well informed Republican politicians at the capital explain that Babler's activity in behalf of Selph is due to the fact that Selph is the political sponsor of the St. Louis Postmaster.

London Fund Inquiry Recalled. Reed, it is asserted, "protected" Babler when the Republican National Committeeman appeared as a witness here prior to the Republican national convention of 1920 before the Senate committee investigating campaign funds, of which the Missouri Democratic Senator was an active member.

This alleged shielding of a political opponent, it is asserted, constituted in permitting Babler to leave the stand without vigorous cross-examination.

In CITY Circulation the daily POST-DISPATCH EXCEEDS the daily Globe-Democrat by approximately 50,000, the daily Star by approximately 60,000 and the Times by approximately 100,000.

GRIFITH AT WORK FORMING THE NEW IRISH GOVERNMENT

Pitfalls Foreseen, but New Leaders Believe They Are Backed by Majority of Ireland's Population.

SPECTER OF A RIVAL EXECUTIVE STILL SEEN

Fear in Some Quarters That Faction of Leaders May Try to Turn People Against Those Just Given Power.

By the Associated Press. DUBLIN, Jan. 11.—Arthur Griffith, new President of the Dail Eireann, and his Cabinet assumed today the places to which they were elected yesterday. It is recognized that careful work is necessary, if pitfalls are to be avoided during the first month which must elapse before final ratification of the treaty creating the Irish Free State is possible. On Feb. 14 the Dail will convene to ratify formally the document which it approved as the representative body of the Irish Republic.

The possibility of the proverbial "slip" is not ignored, and it is feared in some quarters that the republicans might use the interval in attempting to turn popular feeling to their side. Neither has the specter of the possible establishment of a competing executive been wholly laid. Meanwhile the new Dail leaders claim to have assumed their tasks backed by the utmost good will of the majority of Ireland's population. The reported decision of Great Britain to liberate immediately all political prisoners will, it is believed, strengthen their hands against any extremist efforts on this score, and the British troops and other elements of "foreign domination" are rapidly removed their troubles will be further lightened.

Comment on Difficulties. The difficulties with which the new Government is faced are commented upon by the political correspondent of the Freeman's Journal as follows:

"A united and stable Government has been established and the first stage of the fight for the treaty is won, but the obstructive tactics of the opposition have added immensely to the difficulties of the nation builders. The new Cabinet is shouldering a tremendous burden. It has the people of the country behind it, but the circumstances of the revolution have placed another group in position to endanger the new-born treaty. The work of the next few months will include making a Constitution, taking over the Government from the English and a general election. With the heavy co-operation of every good citizen, this would be a task to try the most experienced statesmen. The Deputies who obstruct this work are enemies of the Irish state, even though they act in good faith, for the consequences will be none the less serious should they succeed."

The Irish Independent editorially emphasizes the heavy task before the new Government and hopes the people will loyally respect and obey it. "For the first time in centuries the people come under a government not controlled in its policy by British nominees," it says. "Deputies have promised not to interfere unduly, and other opponents of the treaty have promised to do nothing to hamper the Government."

"Most of those who opposed the treaty admit that the new Cabinet are endeavoring to do what they consider best for the Irish nation. We believe that in a fair election, conducted without force on either side, the people will return an overwhelming majority in support of the treaty."

Confidence in People. The Irish Times also is confident that the people will accept the free state and "relegate to private life those who defied their wishes in the Dail," but it says, until then there will be no stable government, and adds: "Meanwhile many efforts may be made to defeat the settlement and drive the provisional Government either to resignation or despair. Such efforts cannot be prevented, but their opponents can be crushed by early establishment of the free state."

"Until Griffith is able to rally the people to the defense of their own interests, he can merely hope to hold his ground and not to advance. Nothing less than an election will be of any service to him. A plebiscite would be useless, for the treaty's opponents would ignore its results as they ignored the national demand for ratification."

An attempt to force the provisional government to the polls before the free state is embodied in law is impossible, and, if it is made, and is successful, the treaty's friends would fight at very great disadvantage. Therefore it is the British Cabinet's policy to consummate the Irish settlement with upward speed."

FORIFICATION OF JAPANESE ISLANDS WATCHED BY NAVY

Defenses on Nipponese Lesser Group, It Is Pointed Out, Could Bar the Way to North Coast of China.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—The Japanese delegates to the arms conference today tentatively agreed to the withdrawal of Japanese troops from the former German Kiaochow leasehold, and from the Tientsin-Taiwan railway on condition that China furnish proper policing. The delegates did not discuss the date on which the withdrawals would take place, but the Japanese group suggested that the railroad guard withdrawal would be treated separately from that of the removal of other troops in the leasehold.

THINKS FATHER WAS SHOT FOR INTERFERING

Another Former Suitor Had Threatened Her and Demanded Diamond Ring Back, He Declares.

Perry Richwine, barber shop proprietor, was taken to the East St. Louis Police Headquarters this afternoon to be questioned in the investigation of the shooting and killing of his wife, Clara, 35, and his father, William Richwine, 74, in their home at 460 North Fifty-first street, just outside the East St. Louis city limits last Monday. No statement was given out as to what line of questions would be put to him.

The examination of finger prints on objects found near Mrs. Richwine's body was under way today. Photographs were made of finger prints on a glass bowl and a circular mirror on which the bowl customarily stood as a decoration on the dining room table, and of prints on a nut bowl. Finger prints were also taken from Mrs. Richwine's body and photographed. It is understood that the prints on the bowl and mirror are entirely dissimilar from those of Mrs. Richwine, but Bertillon Superintendent James Leahy said it could not be told until the photographs are finished whose prints they are.

The prints may be identified by their likeness to those of someone who was once arrested and subjected to Bertillon examination, or by their likeness to those of someone who may be traced to the scene of the murder of his wife and his father was that some former admirer of his wife had come to see her and sought to seduce her. Her body was found entirely undressed and lying on the dining room table, and there was evidence that she had been frightened to death.

Richwine said there is a man in East St. Louis, whose name he did not give, who had been friendly to her. He said this man today about his acquaintance with Mrs. Richwine. He said he had employed her about seven years ago and that he supposed he had given her presents, as was customary for a man of her position. He said he had not seen her for about three years.

Richwine said he had given her a diamond ring, more than a year ago, and who had written her several times, demanding its return and finally threatening her life. He named this man, who he is declared, was in the Southern Illinois penitentiary for the murder of a man named Richwine. Richwine expressed the belief that some friend of this man might have acted for him in the murder of his wife and father. He said he had not seen him for several years.

Richwine said he knew very little of his wife's movements during the year, while he was at his barber shop. He said he had not seen her for several years. He said he had not seen her for several years.

"DON'T PAY 50 CENTS FOR DIME SHOW"—MAN IN SANITY CASE

Probate Court Jury Decides Harry J. Abrams Is of Sound Mind.

Harry J. Abrams, 35 years old, an electrician at 4916 Delmar boulevard, was declared of sound mind by a jury in the Probate Court this afternoon.

Testimony in his own behalf, Abrams denied the allegations of relatives that he had been making reckless expenditures in the purchase of a large automobile and the hiring of a chauffeur to run it. He caused several jurors to laugh when he said:

"I am thrifty. I don't pay 50 cents to see moving picture shows which are not worth a dime. That's why I have money to spend on other things." The jury remained out only a few minutes after the testimony of the last few days had been in the observation ward at the City Hospital, where he was taken at the request of relatives. On the evidence that he had made the expenditures necessary for the extension of his business and for promotion of his invention of an electrical violet ray machine.

FORMER KATHERINE ELKINS' DIVORCE BECOMES EFFECTIVE

Decree Granted in Paris to Mrs. William H. Elkins Announced to Be in Force.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—Reports that a divorce decree granted last week in Paris to Mrs. William H. Elkins, formerly Katherine Elkins, daughter of the late United States Senator Elkins of West Virginia, had become effective, were confirmed today by intimate friends of Mr. and Mrs. Elkins.

Incompetency was understood to have been the principal grounds given by Mrs. Elkins when she filed suit.

CASHIER ACCUSED OF ROBBING BANK MESSENGER OF $15,000

Pasadena Man Said to Have Admitted Theft and to Have Restored $7686.

PASADENA, Cal., Jan. 11.—Fred A. Grace, cashier of the First National Bank here, was placed in the city jail today and charged with having robbed a Citizens Savings Bank messenger of $15,000 Oct. 27, according to the official statement of the police department. Grace admitted the theft, implicated two others, and restored $7686 stolen funds.

COLLECTION OF ANCIENT COOK BOOKS OFFERED FOR SALE

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—Sonnets on marmalades, symphonies on fragile pastries and poetry on home-made wines—offerings on the shrine of the domestic arts—were offered for sale in a collection of ancient cook books here today. Most of the books were printed long before the American Revolution, in days when the art of cooking was a profound consideration, and all bore testimony that cooks, like poets, were born, and not made.

Some of the recipes in the books were written by famous personalities, among whom were Sir John Evelyn and Sir Kenelm Digby, who lived in that period of the "eminently learned." One detailed the "sure way to rampage" the custom of a lowly servant, while another reached an elevated plane by devoting a large chapter to "the whole duty of woman"—an infallible guide to their conduct in the kitchen through all ages and circumstances of life.

TRUSTEES IN CHRISTIAN SCIENCE PUBLISHING CO. CASE RESIGN

By the Associated Press. BOSTON, Jan. 11.—The resignation of Herbert W. Eustace and Paul Harvey, as trustees of the Christian Science Publishing Society, were accepted by Judge Crosby of the Supreme Court today. He announced that the question of appointing new trustees would be considered later.

At a conference of counsel for the directors of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, with the Court, it was agreed that a hearing should begin tomorrow on the allowance of the trustees' accounts.

Court Asked to Send Four Alleged Addicts to Hospital. Information has been filed in Probate Court under a new State law looking towards the involuntary commitment to some hospital of four alleged drug addicts. The four men named are at present voluntary patients at the city hospital. The commitment to a hospital is at the discretion of the Probate Judge and there is no provision for a jury hearing.

Hospital confinement is to be continued until it is believed the patients are cured of the drug habit. Judge Holtcamp will hear the cases next Friday. He has already sent several alleged drug addicts to the city sanitarium.

STORIES CONFLICT OVER KILLING OF MEN IN FRANCE

Battalion Surgeon Tells Senate Committee He Never Heard of Alleged Lynching at Gondrecourt.

TESTIMONY DIFFERS ON SHOOTING REPORT

Witnesses About Equally Divided on Whether Officer Slew Soldier in Argonne Attack.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—Army officers were called in today by the Senate committee investigating charges against American soldiers who had been hanged in France to check up on testimony of former service men as to the alleged illegal execution.

Dr. E. H. Ross of Danville, Ill., fourth battalion surgeon with the 16th Infantry, declared he heard of no lynchings at Gondrecourt and that he never heard of any hangings in the Argonne. Ross, however, did not testify that he saw a Mexican lynched near Gondrecourt and that the body was taken to a hospital with rope marks around the neck.

Two Views of Alfred J. Nightingale. Description. Forty years old, looks 55; 5 feet 7 or 7 1/2 inches; weighs about 155 or 160 pounds; fair complexion; blue eyes dark chestnut hair slightly streaked with gray; large prominent nose; smooth shaven; good teeth, bridge work in mouth; quick, energetic, and somewhat suspicious. He is an Englishman and a bookkeeper.

Alfred J. Nightingale disappeared from St. Louis May 19, 1919, after having been employed by the General Paper Stock Co. of which he was bookkeeper. A check for $15,000 was issued to him with embezzlement of $15,000 from the General Paper Stock Co.

Nightingale is one of a number of persons wanted by the St. Louis police on serious charges. Photographs and descriptions of other persons for whom the police were searching will appear in the Post-Dispatch from time to time.

DEMOCRATS URGING VOTE TODAY IN MOVE TO UNSEAT NEWBERRY

Continued From Page One. A full vote on the issue coming late today. There are five or six Senators whose attitude remains undisclosed even to those in charge of the floor fight, and it appears that the final position of these will determine the result of the contest.

A resolution declaring Newberry not entitled to a seat in the Senate because of "admitted expenditure by relatives and friends of $200,000 in his behalf" but making no reference to questions of moral turpitude, or Senator Newberry's connections with his campaign committee's activities was introduced today by Senator Owen, Democrat, Oklahoma.

Senator Owen, discussing his resolution, told the Senate that his purpose was to narrow down the controversy to the question of whether it was sound public policy that such large sums should be spent in the election of a United States Senator. He declared that his resolution should compel Senators to seek a dividing line on the subject of congressional expenditures.

Senators Robinson, Democrat, of Arkansas, and Spencer, Republican, of Missouri, joined the discussion. Robinson termed the point of order unworthy of consideration and Spencer insisting that it was vital and that Caraway was guilty of serious infraction of the Senate rules.

Senator Cummins, Republican, of Iowa, President pro tempore, ruled, however, that there had been no violation of the Senate rules, and Caraway resumed his speech with the exclamation:

"Everybody knew there was nothing to it anyhow." Opposition to Newberry Made Yesterday. Five speeches voting opposition to Newberry's being seated were delivered on the floor yesterday, while the Senate was busy with the "unseating" of the Senator.

Leaders of the opposition are declared to have begun efforts to send the question back to the committee, which reported a resolution declaring Newberry to be the duly elected Senator.

They say that Newberry should be called to testify, despite the usual senatorial courtesy and custom of leaving rather than subpoenaing a sitting member. They claim the report is not complete, and will not be without his testimony.

JOURNEY OF SUPPOSED LEPER HALTED HERE

Mexican, Being Deported From Detroit to Border, Stopped by Health Officers.

A Mexican, suffering from a disease which has caused an order for his deportation, was held in isolation today at the United States Public Health Service Hospital, 1399 Arsenal street, following an interruption, by railroad and local health officials, of his journey from Detroit to the Mexican border.

A diagnosis made by a St. Louis specialist, from symptoms, and as verified by a blood test, has indicated that the disease is leprosy. The Mexican was brought here from Detroit, on a Washburn train which reached Union Station Monday afternoon, as a stateroom passenger in a Pullman car. Two physicians of the Public Health Service, accompanying him, occupied berths in the same car, not in the stateroom.

New Experience for Porter. The tickets of the patient and the two physicians read from Detroit to San Antonio, Tex., changing from the Washburn to the M. K. & T. at St. Louis.

When the three left the sleeping car of the Washburn train, one of the physicians handed the negro porter a written order, on authority of the United States Public Health Service, directing that the stateroom be fumigated.

This was a new experience for the porter, and he went to the conductor of the M. K. & T. train, on which the passengers were to leave for San Antonio. A special agent of the M. K. & T. was called, and the city Health Department was notified.

Taken Away in Taxicab. Health Commissioner Starkloff sent an inspector, and also notified Dr. M. F. Engman, who made the symptomatic examination. A more thorough examination was intended, but the two Government physicians placed their patient in a taxicab and took him to the Public Health Service Hospital. This was after they had learned that they would not be permitted to place their patient on the M. K. & T. train.

The Government physicians did not say where they were going, and it was thought at first that they might have driven out of the city to a place where they could isolate the patient. Today Maj. L. P. H. Bahrenburg, superintendent of the Public Health Service Hospital, notified the Health Department that the patient was here.

Maj. Bahrenburg said to a Post-Dispatch reporter that the two physicians were following a procedure customary in such cases, when they placed their patient in isolation in a stateroom and gave an order, at the end of the journey, that the room be fumigated. The fumigation, he said, would remove any possibility of danger to persons occupying the room later. He pointed out that leprosy is not readily communicable, and that considerable personal contact is required to cause infection. He said there was no other practicable way of transporting such patients, and that the attitude of railroad employees was an obstacle to a necessary work.

Final Check in Two Weeks. A final check on the patient's finances, including the debt now expected to be complete in two weeks.

DOUBTFUL PAPER IN NIGHT AND BANK, $150

Examiner Says This Reduced; Figures of Bank's Ultimate Loss About $154,000.

LOANS FIGURED ABOUT $1,000,000

Plan for Reorganization Institution Submitted by Directors to Comm. Hughes.

Doubtful paper in the amount to not more than according to an estimate made by D. W. Ross and Roy H. two of the State examiners of the bank's affairs.

This will mean, the examiners believe, that the bank's loss will be less than $150,000, of the paper now rated full will prove to have so. Any value thus realized would be a credit to the bank's assets, and the examiners' latest calculation puts the total loss at $154,000, of which $4,000 was paid with a total of $158,000.

The loans made by the regular way, with the of the board of directors, were today at a total of $1,000,000, all of which was checked up and found sound and well secured.

The examiners now believe the bank's affairs were not as bad as the bank's directors and the public had been led to believe. The examiners do not find that the deposits were covered with, or their assets, by Meisinger. To the contrary, they say, the bank's assets were not as good as the examiners had been led to believe.

JAIL TERMS FOR TRAFFIC LAW VIOLATORS URGED BY JUDGE

Campaign to Change Charter Suggested to Safety Council—Fatal Accidents 47 Fewer in 1921.

The public safety section of the St. Louis Safety Council, meeting last night at the Claridge Hotel, was urged by Police Judge Mix to start a campaign for changing the city charter to permit sending traffic law violators to jail. He also advocated a law for the impounding by Police Judges of machines whose owners figure in a series of accidents.

It was announced that the fatal accidents in St. Louis in 1921 were 47 fewer than in 1920. The total in 1921 was 330, of which 97 were automobile accidents. The total in 1920 was 377, of which 102 were automobile accidents. Fifteen automobile deaths last year, credited to St. Louis, were due to accidents outside the city.

Since 1917 the annual saving in lives has been almost 200. In that year there were 510 deaths from accident. There were 420 in 1918 and 370 in 1919.

Dr. John Wesley Hill of the United States Department of Justice was the principal speaker. Others on the program were Clarence E. Howard, Dr. E. George Payne, Chief of Detectives Hoagland and Judge Mix.

SCHACHNER TELLS OF FORESTALLING HIS PROSECUTION

The shop since has been taken from his hands by stockholders, who last night he had intended to consider the debts created by Schachner's extravagance. A recent audit of the candy shop's books disclosed the existence of $25,997.87 during Schachner's control, of which no record was kept and for which no responsibility has been fixed.

Among the assets calculated by Schachner in his statement of Justice referred to he believed they totaled $40,000, were a quantity of stocks, chiefly those of oil companies, which remained in the treasury when the bankruptcy petition was filed.

Referee Coles said that so far as the trustees had been able to determine, from inquiry among brokers and bankers, these stocks were worthless.

Answer as to "Value." Schachner said that he believed that the stocks had "value," and when questioned as to what constituted "value" he said that their value lay solely in finding a purchaser.

Schachner said that some salesmen would take the stocks into the market and obtain only a small sum for them, while others could obtain as much as $50,000.

Coles remarked that this was "the wildest sort of talk" and asked Schachner to explain. Schachner thereupon gave the following hypothetical demonstration of stock settlements:

"Take this stock in the motion picture, 'The Birth of the Race,' he said. 'Suppose you held some of this stock. Mr. Coles, I would hunt you up. Suppose you had seen the picture and liked it. I probably could sell that stock to you at $100 a share or par.'

"No, you couldn't," Coles replied. "I'd ask you what dividends the stock was paying, what its assets were, who its officers were and a lot of other things. You couldn't sell stock to me in that fashion."

Shortly afterward, when Schachner again mentioned that the value of the stock lay in finding a market for them, Attorney Lasker interposed. "Finding a sucker," he said.

Questioned About Autos. Schachner, under vigorous questioning by Lasker, denied that the reason he had sold his Hudson automobile was that he had been informed of the letter of the trustee claiming it as an asset of the company, not a personal possession. The other automobile in Schachner's possession, also a Hudson, is claimed by the creditors on the ground that it was paid for by money obtained by sale of one of the company's automobiles.

Lastly also questioned Schachner as to whether he had any funds in any other bank except the Night and Day Bank, which recently failed. Schachner declared that he had not. Lasker questioned particularly as to whether Schachner recently had sent any money to O'Fallon, Ill., which is the home of his father. He said that he had not.

Mother Goose Shop Must Raise $45,000—Bond Issue Decided On. It was stated to stockholders of Missouri Sweets Distributors, Inc., which operates the Mother Goose Shop at Seventh and Olive streets, in an annual meeting last night in the auditorium of the Chamber of Commerce, that $45,000 must be forthcoming before Jan. 25 to pay obligations incurred during the management of W. L. Schachner, bankrupt broker, if the operation of the shop is to be continued.

The stockholders adopted as a preliminary to meet the obligations of $75,000 mortgage bond issue on its equipment and leasehold. The 400 stockholders present subscribed to $24,000 of these bonds. Orla M. Hill, attorney for the company, said today that other subscriptions were obtained previous to the meeting and that he expected that the necessary $45,000 would be raised within two weeks.

It was explained to the stockholders that the business of the candy shop since Schachner was ousted five months ago justified the belief that it can be made a profitable operation if sufficient working capital is provided. The bond issue is calculated to provide this capital. As an illustration of the amount of working capital, it was stated that in the holiday season just closed virtually the entire stock was sold out three days before Christmas and that subsequently it was necessary to refuse orders for 7000 pounds of candy. The shop has been compelled to pay cash upon delivery for all materials.

Another meeting of stockholders will be held next Monday night in the Chamber of Commerce at which time other subscriptions to the bonds will be asked for and a board of directors elected. There are approximately 1500 stockholders in the company in St. Louis and immediate vicinity. Their total holdings are in excess of $425,000.

TWO HURT IN AUTO-TRAIN RACE By the Associated Press. MONROE, Wis., Jan. 11.—Racing a Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad passenger train due here from Milwaukee at 8:30 o'clock last night may cost the lives of two persons who were pinned beneath the wheels of a automobile which turned over twice in a ditch near southeast of Monroe. The victims are Fred Hansen, 22 years old, and Clara Streubel, 20, both of Brookhead, Wis. The condition of each is serious.

The automobile had been racing neck and neck with the train at a speed of about 60 miles an hour for several miles when the accident occurred, according to the engineer, who stopped his train and, with the aid of passengers, loaded the injured persons aboard the mail car and brought them to a hospital here.

Address on Jew and Patriotism. Dr. Leon Harrison will speak on "The Jew and American Patriotism" at the installation of officers of the Ebn Ezra Lodge, Independent Order of B'nai B'rith, at the United Hebrew Temple, King's highway and Enright avenue, at 8 o'clock tomorrow night.

FRED VAN BLARCOM RADZIWIILL-DEACON STILL OF UNSOUND MIND, JURY DECIDES BY ROME TRIBUNAL

Ruling in Case of Son of Late Banker Second of Kind by Juries Since April, 1920.

A jury in the Probate Court yesterday found against Frederick Van Blarcom, 36 years old, in the suit asking for removal of his guardian on the ground that he is now a person of sound mind.

The guardian, the St. Louis Union Trust Co., was appointed after a jury, in April, 1920, had found Van Blarcom to be a person of unsound mind. Recently a hearing was conducted before Probate Judge Holtcamp on the issue as to whether Van Blarcom had been restored to soundness of mind. The Probate Judge found against him, and then, under the law, he was entitled to a trial by jury, which now affirms the Probate Judge's decision. One juror refused to sign the verdict.

Van Blarcom's attorneys, Randolph Laughlin and A. M. Frumberg, said after the trial that they did not believe there was any appeal from the decision of the jury, and, in their opinion, the only remedy would be an application for a writ of certiorari for a review of the case by the Circuit Court of Appeals.

Holtcamp said he was under the impression that the last Legislature had enacted a law granting some kind of appeal in a case like the Van Blarcom proceeding.

History of the Case. Van Blarcom is a son of the late Jacob C. Van Blarcom, who was president of the Bank of Commerce. After the death of his mother, Fred inherited property with a net value of $370,000, which is in charge of the St. Louis Union Trust Co. as executor and trustee under his mother's will. The will provided that Van Blarcom was to receive the income after $100 a month was deducted for John Lewis, a negro servant, and if the son should die without issue the whole estate should go to Washington University.

The income after $100 a month was approximately $1500 a month, of which Van Blarcom has been receiving $500 monthly.

The reason for desiring the guardian removed was to enable Van Blarcom to handle the entire income and also to invest him with liberty of action. Under the guardianship he cannot be married or contract any other legal obligation without first obtaining consent of the guardian. At present he is a patient at the City Sanitarium, but the testimony was that he is not restrained, being at liberty to go and come at will.

Testimony of Physician. The trust company retained the suit, which was brought by S. Potts, who has been treating Van Blarcom. Dr. George A. Johns, superintendent of the city sanitarium, testified that while Van Blarcom is not a dangerous person, he is not capable of managing his affairs. The physician also said that Van Blarcom is afflicted with delusions, which at times are suppressed. One delusion, Dr. Johns said, was in regard to papers of his father's estate in the law offices of Boyle & Priest.

Van Blarcom had said that he employed a woman detective to obtain possession of these papers for him, Dr. Johns said.

Dr. W. W. Graves, 5136 Enright avenue, a specialist in nervous diseases, testified in his opinion that Van Blarcom had not been restored. Counsel for Van Blarcom asked Dr. Graves to make a mental test of the client.

In the presence of the jury, the witness refused, saying: "This is neither the time nor place to make such examination." Dr. Graves said that he received a fee of $10 a day for testifying as an expert, Van Blarcom was formerly his patient.

Dr. Arthur H. Deppé, 4728A Leclerc street, formerly in charge of Alesian Brothers' Hospital, who testified against Van Blarcom, was recalled to the stand to testify concerning a remark he was alleged to have made after leaving the stand and which was reported to Van Blarcom's lawyers. "Didn't you say that you were here to see that those leeches don't get all his money?" Attorney Frumberg asked. "I did not, and whoever said I did," the physician answered. He then said that the conversation after he left the witness stand was with Dr. Graves, who congratulated him on his testimony.

Testimony for Plaintiff. Several alienists testified in favor of Van Blarcom, saying that they believed he was mentally well. They also said that he was capable of handling his property. Many other witnesses took the stand and testified that they had conversed with the ward and believed he was in his right mind.

The jury considered the case over an hour before returning its verdict.

GREAT LAKES-ST. LAWRENCE WATERWAY AUTHORIZED IN BILL By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—Construction of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway would be authorized, as far as the United States is concerned, under a bill introduced today by Representative Chalmers Republican, O., which provides, however, that the cost of the improvement be met by a bond issue, guaranteed by the United States and Canadian Governments.

Amer Beauty Whose Marriage to Prince Is Annulled in Rome

MISS DOROTHY DEACON.

By the Associated Press. ROME, Jan. 11.—Princess Radziwill announces that the sacred Rota tribunal of the Vatican has annulled the marriage of her son, Prince Radziwill, to Miss Dorothy Deacon, which took place in 1910 at London.

Miss Dorothy Deacon was the daughter of the late Edward Parker Deacon of Boston, and became a Princess by reason of her marriage. She was noted for her beauty and had long been prominent in society in London and Paris.

Previous dispatches have reported that the Princess had sought annulment of her marriage, basing her plea on the ground that she had not entered voluntarily into that state.

The Duchess of Marlborough, who before her marriage to the Duke last June, was Miss Gladys Deacon, is a sister of Princess Radziwill. The Duchess attended the wedding of her sister Dorothy.

At the time the engagement of the Duke of Marlborough and Miss Gladys Deacon was announced, the Post-Dispatch Sunday magazine printed the following account of the tragedy of the Deacon family:

Edward Parker Deacon was a type of the New England aristocrat—haughty, self-contained and dignified. His father, a sea captain, had erected and furnished in Boston a superb mansion which was called "Deacon's Folly." To embellish it he stripped a French chateau of ceilings, dados, friezes and tapestries. In this ornate palace Edward Parker Deacon was born.

While still a beardless youth, he served as a staff officer during the Civil War. At the conclusion of the war he became a conspicuous figure in international society. London, Nice, Paris and Newport knew him, and his yacht was familiar in American and European waters. By the time he was 32 he was regarded as an incorrigible bachelor.

But on one of these cruises he met Miss Florence Baldwin, beautiful daughter of the late Admiral Charles Baldwin of Cincinnati. She was only 17 years old, with a faultless figure, hair like spun gold and eyes of remarkable brilliancy and vivacity. In this ornate palace Edward Parker Deacon was born.

INQUEST INTO DEATH OF CLERK CONTINUED

Inquiry Delayed by Reluctance of One Witness to Answer Questions.

A Coroner's inquest into the death of Frederick Sommerer, 44 years old, of Webster Groves, a clerk, who died at Barnes Hospital yesterday from peritonitis, said to have been caused by an injury suffered in a fight, was begun today, but continued owing to the reluctance of a witness to answer questions on cross-examination.

Sommerer was found at his home about 2 p. m. Sunday in pain from an internal injury. He told policeman he had been in a fight at the home of Charles Kreider of 40 Moody avenue, Webster Groves, a blacksmith, where a dice game was in progress and whisky being drunk. He named Kreider, John Klag, a Webster Groves policeman; T. J. Shepherd and Ben Heckemeyer, also of Webster Groves, as being present when the fight occurred, and said a man with a mustache kicked him.

Kreider, Klag, Shepherd and Heckemeyer denied there was a fight or any trouble, but admitted there had been a card game and whisky drinking. They said Sommerer was lying in the yard apparently drunk when the party broke up and that they could not account for his injury.

Kreider was reluctant to answer questions on cross-examination, and Deputy Coroner Dever continued the inquest. The four men were held for the Webster Groves police.

Grand Larceny Indictments in Garavelli Liquor Case. Indictments charging grand larceny against Emerich Valja of 5116 Pershing avenue and Leo Cohn of the Claridge Hotel were voted yesterday by the grand jury after it had heard Joseph Garavelli's complaint of the theft of liquor which he valued at $20,000 from his cafe at 5701 De Giverville avenue, in a fake raid by pretended prohibition officers Dec. 8.

Garavelli has related that Valja agreed with him to remove the liquor from the cafe premises to an apartment where Garavelli was living, and that $100 was to be paid for the service. Valja, however, had been loaded on trucks for the removal, he said, the pretended prohibition officers appeared, "arrested" Valja and hauled the liquor away. Cohn's alleged connection with the matter was that he introduced Valja to Garavelli, and vouched for him as "Mr. Johnson," a real estate dealer.

Snack Thief Steals $10,000 in Bonds. PROVIDENCE, R. I., Jan. 11.—When a teller momentarily left his cage in the Union Trust Co. here yesterday, an unidentified man, who reached through the wicket, stole a $10,000 Liberty bond and a bundle of checks, and escaped before an alarm could be given.

STATE PUTS QUESTIONS FOR B'RGH DEFENSE TO ANSWER

By the Associated Press. LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 11.—The State asked the defense of Arthur C. Burch to answer some questions today when the defense gets its turn in the argument of the Burch trial, now under way. Counsel for Burch, who is on trial charged with the murder of J. Belton Kennedy on the night of Aug. 5, has insisted on an insanity defense which has been attacked by the State.

COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY HOLDS EXPERIMENTAL POKER GAME

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—Science has taken a hand in poker. The complex that causes people to sit up all night with cards and chips is under examination at Columbia University where the department of psychology recently called for volunteers to sit in on a little game that was observed and studied by the instructors.

The professors said the volunteer "poker faces," reactions of the fellow who drew to a pair and filled, and other psychological information about the pastime will be included in an early publication on practical psychology.

200 TO 300 PER CENT BULB PROFIT ALLEGED

Manager of Electric Lamp Concern Testifies in New York Hearing on Prices.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—Testimony that profits on electric light bulbs ranged in instances from 200 to 300 per cent was given yesterday at the Lockwood committee investigation of the General Electric Co.'s alleged monopoly of the business. This was the figure Thomas Spina, manager of the Continental Lamp Co., testified, at which the company's list price compelled dealers to sell its lights above the manufacturing cost of independent concerns.

Other testimony indicated that from 1915 to 1924, when there was a shortage of lamps, the company restricted the output of factories which it licensed under patents to make lamps. Spina testified that the resale price had been fixed by the General Electric Co., citing one instance of a bulb, costing 40 cents to make, having been sold to the consumer at $1.60.

STATE INCOME TAX RULING QUESTIONED

Chamber of Commerce Counsel Gives Opinion Contrary to That of Attorney-General.

Glendy B. Arnold, counsel of the Chamber of Commerce, has rendered the chamber's War Tax Committee an opinion contrary to that of the Attorney-General's office as to the rate at which the State income tax on 1931 incomes should be levied.

The Attorney-General's office has instructed the City Assessor of St. Louis, and County Assessors throughout the State, to levy the tax at a rate of 1-1/2 per cent on net incomes for the year 1931, after deductions authorized have been made.

Attorney Arnold holds that the levy must be made on a basis of 1 1/2 per cent for the first seven months of 1931, and 1/2 of 1 per cent for the last five months; and that the income from Jan. 1 to Aug. 1, 1931, and the income from Aug. 1 to the end of the year, must be figured separately in making the levy.

The Legislature voted that the rate for 1931 should be, as stated by Arnold, 1 1/2 per cent for the part of the year up to the time when the act should take effect, and 1/2 of 1 per cent for the rest of the year. An emergency clause was attached, making the act effective Aug. 1.

The Attorney-General's office holds that the emergency provision is invalid, having been rendered so by the referendum, and that the change in rate went into effect Nov. 1, instead of Aug. 1.

This would mean 10 months, or five-sixths of the year, at the 1 1/2 per cent rate, and two months, or one-sixth of the year, at the 1/2 of 1 per cent rate. Calculations show that this would make 1-1/3 per cent for the year, provided the income was uniform throughout the year.

MURDER DEFENDANT DID NOT OFFER TO PLEAD GUILTY

Erroneous Statement as to Thomas S. Beck Made—Mistake Made as to His Counsel.

It was erroneously stated in the Post-Dispatch last Thursday that counsel for Thomas S. Beck, who was tried on a charge of having murdered Louis Cluff, had proposed before the trial that Beck plead guilty and receive a sentence of 25 years in the penitentiary but that the Circuit Court had refused to accept the plea on the condition named.

The misunderstanding was due to a conversation between Judge Hogan and Assistant Circuit Attorney Johnston, in the presence of a Post-Dispatch reporter, in which Judge Hogan asked Johnston if the jury knew of Beck's offer to plead guilty and accept a sentence of 25 years. Johnston replied that the jury did not know of it before it was discharged. Investigation has disclosed that the remarks were based upon hearsay to the effect that Beck had expressed a willingness to plead guilty.

Another erroneous statement in the same article was that counsel for Beck had been appointed by the Court. This was based on the statement of one of the attorneys to the jury that counsel was not being paid for his work in defending Beck. It was learned that the attorneys had been retained by Beck. The jury in the case was unable to agree and a mistrial was declared by the Court. The case was set for retrial March 31.

STOLEN PROPERTY CHARGE IN CAVANAGH CASE NOLLE-PROSSO

Prosecutor Unable to Obtain Several Witnesses, One of Them Having Died.

A nolle prosequi was entered in the Circuit Court yesterday by the State in the case of Walter W. Cavanagh of 5375 Washington avenue, president of the Manufacturers' Printery, whose sentence of two years in the penitentiary received in 1919 for receiving stolen property was later remanded by the Supreme Court.

Former Circuit Attorney Lawrence McDaniel, who had been employed as special prosecutor, explained to the Court that a number of witnesses in the case could not be obtained, one of them having died. The State then entered the nolle prosequi.

Cavanagh was charged with having in his possession two stolen automobiles.

MEETING OF RAIL AND UNION HEADS PLANNED

Hoover, With President's Approval, Arranges Gathering for Next Week to Avert Controversy

By the Associated Press
WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—An effort to avert a controversy between railroads and their employees has been begun, it was learned today, by Secretary Hoover, who, with President Harding's approval, has called representatives of the larger railroads and of the railroad brotherhoods and other unions affected into a series of conferences.

An agreement has been reached for a meeting next week.

Hopeful of Results.
Hoover indicated today that officials participating were hopeful of attaining results.

While all the disputed questions, over wage reductions and abrogation of the national working agreements, which the Railroad Labor Board has authorized, will be taken up, the chief object sought is to obtain further settlements between roads and employees without a proceeding being brought to that board. Such an agreement, in the administration view, would prevent strike calls or other moves which might result if the board was forced to take the differences to trial and issue mandatory decisions.

The railroad executives have issued notices of intentions to apply for further wage revisions and thus having a case tentatively before the board, no meetings looking toward a settlement of the issue have been held.

There also was a disposition in some circles to regard the matter as more serious, due to a belief that the cases were pressed before the Railroad Labor Board, a decision distasteful to the employees might result in March.

The national wage agreement on coal mine wages also expires on April 1.

POLICEMAN FINDS AUTO STOLEN FROM F. C. WOERMANN

Car Was Taken Monday Night by Robber Who Had Concealed Self in Tonnneau.

The automobile stolen from Frederick C. Woermann of 7 Arundel place, Hillcrest, by a robber who rode Mr. and Mrs. Woermann around the county at the point of a pistol Monday night, afterwards robbing Woermann of $25, on the Hanley road near Clayton and taking the machine, was found abandoned, within the radiator warm, on Lucas avenue between Fourth street and Broadway, at 12:45 a. m. today, by a policeman, who noted the license number. The machine was taken to the Carr Street Station.

The policeman reported he had passed there half an hour before and the machine was not there then. As told yesterday, the robber secreted himself in the tonneau of the car and held up Woermann and his wife as they were pulling away from the home of friends on Clemens avenue, compelling them to drive him through the county, keeping up a conversation until they reached a spot convenient for the robbery. Woermann and his wife walked a mile and a quarter to a street car line to reach their home. The robber had assured them their machine would be found "on Olive street."

MUSICIAN'S BODY ON WAY HOME

George Shaw, turnkey at Police Headquarters, was notified this morning that the body of his son, Robert R. Shaw, a member of the old First Regiment band, who was killed with other members of the band when a shell exploded near Cheppy Woods in the Arizona Sept. 26, would arrive in New York Jan. 14.

Shaw lives at 7131 Piccadilly avenue, Maplewood. The body will be brought to St. Louis, where arrangements for military honors at the funeral probably will be made by former members of the 138th Infantry.

Facial Outbreaks Are Renewed.
By the Associated Press.
JAN. 11.—Conflicts between the Fascists and the Communists have broken out with renewed fury at Bergamo, near Florence. Two combatants already had been killed in fighting there when carabinieri, rushing into the town to re-establish order, were received with fusillades from windows and doorways. The fighting lasted for an hour or more, three of the carabinieri and one other of the rioters, a Communist, being killed. Disorders also occurred at Bergamo.

Buell Bank Liabilities Guaranteed.
Special to the Post-Dispatch.
JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Jan. 11.—The Buell Bank of Buell, Montgomery County, with total resources of about $45,000, failed to open its doors Monday morning, but was absorbed that afternoon by the First National Bank of Montgomery City, which bought the assets of the Buell Bank and guaranteed its liabilities. The negotiations were conducted by A. J. Stanfield, deputy director of the State Department of Finance.

CHOICE OF NEW FRIENDS IS IMPORTANT

The importance of choosing the right kind of friends is recognized, but few realize that it is just as important to choose the right kind of furniture, for good furniture is your life-long companion.

The Prufrock-Littor Furniture Company, Fourth and St. Charles streets, are known for their Quality Furniture. In their After-Inventory Sale this week this furniture is priced low enough to be within the reach of everybody, and terms are liberal.

RECEIVER NAMED FOR RUEMMEL-DAWLEY CO.

Vice President Placed in Charge of Business in Involuntary Bankruptcy Petition.

An involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed yesterday against the Ruemmell-Dawley Manufacturing Co., 3923 Chouteau avenue, makers of boilers, tanks and ice and refrigerating machinery. E. W. Schadek, vice president of the company, was appointed receiver by Federal Judge Faris today. He furnished $25,000 bond.

The petition was filed in behalf of the following creditors, who hold claims in the sums mentioned: Donovan Iron & Supply Co., $5501; More-Jones Brass & Metal Co., $1233, and Monsanto Chemical Co., $56. It is alleged that the company committed acts of bankruptcy in making preferred creditors of certain other concerns by the payment of their bills. Schadek said today that the suit is friendly and not unexpected. He said that there are large outstanding accounts which could not be collected in the near future. He said he felt sure that the company can be restored to a good financial condition through the receivership. It was incorporated under Missouri laws about 20 years ago and has a capital of $250,000. Albert Ruemmell, the president, was engaged in a similar business for some time before the present company was incorporated.

REPORT SHOWS THAT NO UNDUE
RISK WAS TAKEN WITH ZR-2

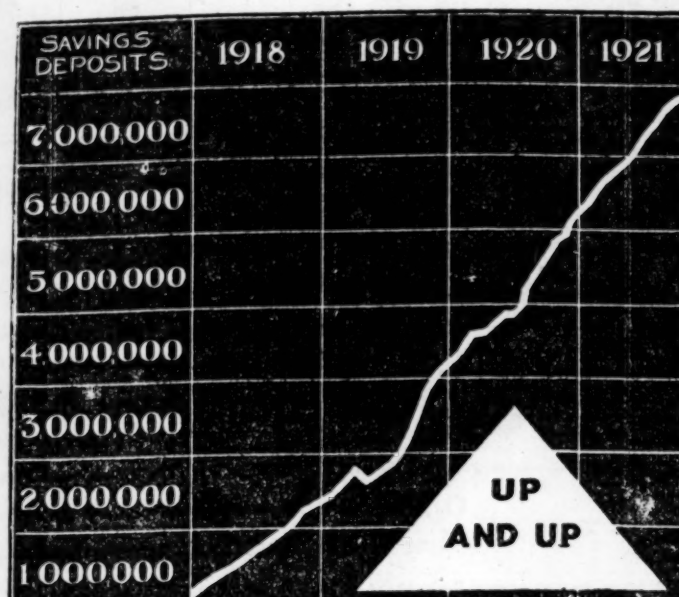

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Jan. 11.—No undue risk was taken in the design of the R-38 (ZR-2) and there was no change from previous practice as regards safety which experience or comparison with German airships did not make permissible, according to a report of the Admiralty Committee board, included in a statement given out by the Admiralty yesterday.

The statement embodies a report of the full investigation held in accordance with the decision of the Admiralty board, after the big dirigible exploded over Hull, England, during a trial flight last August. According to the statement, the evidence showed no modifications were made in the main structure of the R-38 to October, 1919, when responsibility for design and construction was transferred to the Air Ministry.

Prussian Ban on Celebrations.
By the Associated Press.
BERLIN, Jan. 11.—Public carnivals and celebrations have been prohibited by the Prussian Government. The other Federal Governments have been asked to issue orders along the same lines.

Montreal Dance Time Limited.
MONTREAL, Jan. 11.—Night life in this city sustains a severe blow in the by-law adopted by the Executive Committee of the City Council here yesterday which fixes the closing hour for public dance halls at 1 a. m., except on Saturdays, when they must close at midnight.

Where the People Put Their Money

THIS LINE—showing a four-year growth of nearly seven million in savings deposits, an increase of nearly a million and a quarter in 1921—marks the National Bank of Commerce as the fastest growing savings institution in St. Louis.

More than 65,000 people bank the Commerce Way with absolute safety, 45,000 of them being savers, with deposits totaling $6,821,110.

Savers are attracted here in these large numbers because they find extraordinary dollar protection—a total of $25,000,000 including stockholders' double liability; because of the careful management of officers and directors; because 3% is paid on savings, and, lastly, because this big bank offers all the safety features possible, combined with a friendly interest in the depositors.

Open Monday Nights Until 6:30 p. m.
Savers in need of counsel are invited.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Jan. 11.—Turkey, fancy fowl and other poultry and rabbits filled the international amphitheater at the Union Stock Yards today when the National Poultry Show and Chicago Breeders' Association opened. The displays of capon and turkey are attracting unusual attention and are said to be the largest ever shown here.

TWO NEW HIGH SCHOOLS DEPEND ON TAX RATE

Structures to Cost $1,500,000 Each Planned by Board if 85-Cent Levy Is Maintained on March 28.

The building of two new high schools, to cost $1,500,000 each, at Louisiana avenue and Hartford street and at Natural Bridge and Prairie avenues, will depend on the outcome of a taxpayers' election, March 28 next, on the question of maintaining the present 85-cent school tax rate, on the $100 property valuation, for a period of four years.

The Board of Education last night approved the plans for the new high school on the South Side, and approved the purchase of the Cardinal baseball park site on Natural Bridge avenue, from Prairie to Vandeventer avenue, as the site for the new North Side high school. This purchase is dependent on the action of the city authorities in vacating the streets and alleys which have been laid out, but not constructed, across the former baseball field.

Future Plans Undetermined.
No announcement has been made as to future plans for Yeatman High School, which is four blocks east of the Cardinal Field site. It is believed that it will be converted ultimately into a junior high school. It is possible the same action may be taken as to McKinley High School, which is in the same general section as the proposed new South Side school.

The need, even at present, of larger high-school facilities, was shown by a statement submitted to the board by Supt. Maddox, that the five high schools now in use were accommodating 1232 more than their capacity.

The question of names for the new high schools has not been taken up yet. It is the custom of the board to name schools only after dead persons. An attempt, soon after Col. Theodore Roosevelt's death in 1919, to change the name of Central High School to Roosevelt High School, was unsuccessful, because graduates of the school wished the old name preserved. It was then stated that a future high school might receive Roosevelt's name.

To Meet Again Tuesday.
The board, at a meeting next Tuesday, will receive the plans for the proposed high school on the Cardinal Field site, and will also consider plans for two new elementary school buildings, one to be named the Cyrus P. Walbridge School, at Lillian and Davidson avenues, and the other the Long School, replacing the present group of portable buildings at 5008 Morganford road.

DISCUSSION DURING DUEL LEADS TO RECONCILIATION

South American Refuses to Fire Second Time at Antagonist and Disagreement Is Cleared.

By the Associated Press.
BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 11.—The popular fancy has been captivated by the details of a duel which has been fought here by Dr. Rodolfo Moreno and Senator Fernando Sagüer.

Dr. Moreno is an eminent conservative politician and candidate for the governorship of the province of Buenos Aires, while Senator Sagüer is a no less prominent radical politician. The dispute arose over the phraseology of a radical election poster. When Dr. Moreno criticized it, Senator Sagüer, who was in no way responsible for it, felt it incumbent on him to do battle for its author, with the result that Dr. Moreno demanded satisfaction.

Both fired at the signal, but neither was wounded. Dr. Moreno's seconds noted that Senator Sagüer had fired at the ground and they then insisted that Dr. Moreno should stand up unarmed to receive another shot, but Senator Sagüer refused to fire at him. A discussion ensued in a reconciliation.

TEXAS COURT HOLDS GRAND JURY WITH WOMEN IS ILLEGAL

Under Ruling, Man's Sentence of 99 Years for Killing Woman Is Dismissed.

By the Associated Press.
AUSTIN, Tex., Jan. 11.—Declaring a grand jury with women members is illegal, the Court of Criminal Appeals today reversed and dismissed the 99-year sentence of Robert J. Riddle, found guilty by a court in Waco of the murder of Mrs. Ida Spry, Dec. 12, 1926. Under the court's ruling the prosecution against Riddle is dismissed and there is no case against him.

The court recently held that the grand jury which indicted Riddle, having two women members, was illegal and all indictments and bills returned by it likewise were void and illegal.

FIREMAN IS SCALDED TO DEATH

Two Others Hurt When Engine Rolls Down 100-Foot Embankment.

By the Associated Press.
PORTSMOUTH, O., Jan. 11.—J. G. Callahan, Russell, Ky., fireman, was killed, and S. B. Caldwell, brakeman, Chinnville, Ky., and Louis K. Perry, engineer, Russell, Ky., were badly injured and scalded when the engine tender and the coal cars of a Chesapeake & Ohio northern freight rolled down a 100-foot embankment near Sciotoville early today. Callahan was scalded to death.

PUPILS STAB SCHOOL TEACHER

Boys, 14 and 16, Alleged to Have Resisted Attempted Punishment.

By the Associated Press.

PRINCETON, N.J., Jan. 10.—Ernest Howton, school principal at Hewitt, near here, was stabbed probably fatally today by two pupils when he attempted to punish them for infractions of school rules. Howton was wounded several times in the back, shoulder and arms. The pupils alleged to have attacked him are Otis and Aubrey Bialock, brothers, 14 and 16 years old.

PROVIDENT ASSOCIATION
APPEALS FOR FUNDS

Chairman Says $206,000 Must Be Raised or Organization Must Cease Work.

"The budget for the St. Louis Provident Association must be raised," said Warren C. Flynn, chairman of the Finance Committee, today, "or the Provident will have to cease functioning, and it is a grave question as to whether the St. Louis public can afford to permit such a thing to come to pass."

"The raising of the $206,000 necessary to carry on the work of the Provident Association is every citizen's job. It is not only the concern of the officials and Board of Directors of the Provident Association, but the duty of every man and woman enjoying the privileges of citizenship in St. Louis."

"We have about 14,000 cards bearing the names and addresses of firms and individuals, mostly contributors to the association in the past. We need solicitors to make calls on these people and firms. The cards have been arranged in districts and everything arranged to expedite the work of the solicitors as much as possible. Men Supplied by Business Firms."

"We have called on the business houses of St. Louis to supply us with reliable men for the solicitation and have met with a fairly generous response and co-operation, but we need a great many more volunteers and ask the firms to assign us men, as we want to make the work as light as possible on every worker. A number of the directors have volunteered 60 and 100 men during the week of the campaign."

"The Board of Religious Organizations which has heretofore always given the Provident Association such splendid aid in the canvass for funds will consider the matter of helping at the next board meeting Monday. This organization of women is so thoroughly organized that they can summon a force of workers in an hour's notice and produce effective results."

"The budget of $206,000 has been fixed as necessary to carry out the work of the Provident. This amount was arrived at after a careful canvass of the past year and of employment and economic conditions, and it is now up to the citizens of St. Louis to get the money, and to get the money it will be necessary for us to have sufficient workers to make the calls. It is everybody's job and we ask for co-operation."

"In 1921 there was an increase in expenditure of $23,919.62 over the preceding year. This increase is accounted for almost entirely by unemployment relief which amounted to $22,825. The relief expenditures of poor families that come within the range of the work of the Provident tends to increase in these times because relatives and friends who customarily help them are, many of them, out of work and cannot continue to do so."

Last Work for 503 Men.

"The relief expenditures for the unemployed would have been much larger if every man had not been instructed and required to make strenuous efforts to find and take such temporary jobs as he could. Also, in spite of the difficulties, the social workers were able to find work for many. They procured temporary work for 503 men, having an aggregate cash value of $46,278. They secured 480 permanent jobs whose first month's wages had a value of $22,149.40."

"Unemployment was the outstanding problem of last year, but at no time, even though tens of thousands of men were out of work in St. Louis, were any of their families permitted to suffer for the necessities of life after their needs became known to the St. Louis Provident Association. The responsibility of this relief work for the unemployed was taken on in addition to its regular work by the Provident because no other provision had been made for it by any other agencies. There was no Mayor's Commission, nor Citizens' Committee to raise funds and no city appropriation to supply work like many other cities provided."

1866 Families Sought Help.

"The 1866 destitute families of the unemployed naturally turned to the Provident Association as their only source of help and constituted 57 per cent of the total number under care."

"We have been fortunate in having had mild weather, but must be prepared against the exigencies arising from the severe season during the latter part of January, February and March—the periods in which St. Louis usually has her severe weather."

Headquarters have been established on the fifth floor of the Compton Building, Seventh and Locust streets, where applications for volunteer workers will be received and districts assigned.

Canadian Veterans' Chief Missing.

By the Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 11.—Hanford MacNider, national commander of the American Legion, today issued a bulletin to all legion posts, asking their assistance in a search for Thomas Dace, vice president of the Great War Veterans of Canada. Dace was last heard of in Winnipeg, Dec. 22, and was believed to have been on his way to Minnesota. He had been ill for some time as a result of wounds suffered in the World War. Dace is described as 38 years old, 5 feet 4½ inches tall, weighs 153 pounds, has black hair and gray eyes.

Taken Here on Detroit Charge.

Marvin Adams, 20 years old, an ex-convict, of 6708 Glades avenue, was arrested yesterday at 6814 Clayton road on information from Detroit, charging him with assault with intent to kill. Adams is wanted for the alleged wounding of a Detroit policeman in July, 1920, who was attempting to arrest him as a burglary suspect. A $500 reward was offered for Adams' apprehension. Adams, who has served terms in the State reformatory and the State penitentiary and a workhouse term in Chicago for burglary and larceny, denies the Detroit shooting. He has waived extradition.

DRIVER OF AUTO THAT HIT WOMAN FOUND BY "AD"

Man, Seeing "Personal," Helps Police in Tracing Machine That Seriously Injured Mrs. Maude Baker Dec. 3.

SHE IS IN HOSPITAL WITH BROKEN BONES

Baden Service Car Owner Says He Didn't Know Woman, Who Was Dragged 75 Feet, Was Hurt.

An automobile driver who fled after his car knocked down and seriously injured Mrs. Maude Baker, 30 years old, a widow, of 2038 Geyer avenue, at Broadway and St. Charles street the night of Dec. 3 last, was arrested last night through information obtained by the aid of a "personal" in the advertising columns of the Post-Dispatch.
He is Walter Vassier, 26, of 8434 Hall's Ferry road, a service car driver, and following his arrest he made a written statement at Police Headquarters admitting that he was the driver who figured in the accident. He is held pending application for warrants charging felonious wounding and felonious flight from the scene of an accident, penitentiary offense.
Auto in Center of Street.
Mrs. Baker, as was told at the time, was crossing from the west to the east side of Broadway, at St. Charles street, and was knocked down by an automobile, southbound in the center of Broadway. She was caught by the fender and bumper and carried about 75 feet, when she fell off and was run over. She is at the Missouri Baptist Sanitarium in a serious condition from broken right shoulder, broken right elbow, broken left knee and fracture of the right knee.
The automobile, a black-painted Ford touring car, with motor down, did not stop, and Patrolman Schuessler, after calling upon the driver to halt, fired two shots at the car. The automobile continued south at high speed and turned west into Pine street, where trace of it was lost.
Witnesses later informed friends of Mrs. Baker that the automobile carried a banner on the rear inscribed "Shop in Baden," and the friends had a series of inquiries inserted in the "personal" column of the Post-Dispatch. Recently George R. Bower of 3338 Arsenal street, attracted by the advertisement, informed the police that banners, such as had been described in the advertisement, had been issued by the Business Men's League of Baden and that several had been attached to service automobiles running between Baden and the downtown section of the city.
Detectives, under Lieut. Vasey of the homicide squad, investigated. They learned that five service cars had carried such banners. They questioned merchants in Baden and by a process of elimination finally directed suspicion against Vassier.
Did Not Know Woman Was Hurt.
Vassier, who has a stand in front of a drug store at 8400 North Broadway, was questioned and admitted having taken a passenger to Union Station the night of the accident. He later admitted that at Broadway and St. Charles street a woman, attempting to cross the street, ran into his automobile. He said it was snowing at the time and that he was under the impression that the woman was not injured. He said he was not aware of the fact that a policeman fired two shots at him.
In his written statement Vassier said that after the accident he proceeded along Broadway to Pine street, west to Eighteenth street and then to the east entrance of Union Station.
A warrant charging him with leaving the scene of an accident was issued today.

STRIKER HELD ON RIOT CHARGE

Youth Arrested After Packing House Workers Are Attacked.

A youth giving his name as James King, 19 years old, of 816 North Second street, East St. Louis, was arrested yesterday at Main street and Broadway, on a charge of rioting, after a number of men attacked persons employed at East St. Louis packing houses, when they changed cars. Ray Clapp, a packing house employe, informed the police that King was one of the men who attacked him.
King said that he and about 15 other strikers were on picket duty, and five of the men sought to talk to about 10 strike breakers. Somebody, he said, threw a brick, knocking one of the strike breakers down. The others ran, he said.
School Association Election.
The Board of Control of the St. Louis Public School Patrons' Alliance, at its annual meeting Monday evening at the Public Library, elected the following officers: Dr. William D. Aufderheide, president; Martin Scherrer and Louis Marka, vice presidents; E. M. Edmonson, secretary, and Philip Kuestner, treasurer. Dr. Aufderheide, who was re-elected, reported that membership had more than doubled during the year.

Here's the Happy Way to Rid Yourself of Constipation PERMANENTLY!

Bran is the most wonderful health food known! Nine-tenths of human ills would be eliminated if all the people would eat bran regularly, because bran corrects constipation! Constipation can be blamed as the starting point of 90% of the sickness!
Bran in deliciously palatable form—Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumpled—will give permanent relief from constipation if eaten regularly each day. We guarantee that results will prove astounding if at least two table-spoonfuls are eaten daily. Chronic cases should use as much as is needed.
Physicians endorse the use of Kellogg's Bran for constipation. It is not only surely effective as a permanent relief if eaten regularly, but it is the ideal way to correct constipation through food!
Kellogg's Bran is not a cathartic—it is nature's food that will not only delight your palate but safeguard your health! Start the children eating Kellogg's Bran. It builds strong bodies! Serve bran to your family as a cereal or on other cereals! Use it generously making muffins, macaroons, raisin bread or in a hundred appetizing ways! Pancakes made of Kellogg's Bran are the best you ever ate!
The consistent use of Kellogg's Bran will clear up a pimply skin and purify the blood.
Kellogg's Bran, eaten regularly, prevents a bad breath from the stomach and intestines. Your grocer has it. P. S. By the way, it's a happy-health-habit to keep Kellogg's Bran on the dining table all the time! Sprinkle it on your food!

$350,000 HIGH SCHOOL GIVEN TO ST. LOUIS U.

Building With Capacity for 1000 to 1200 Students Will Be Provided by Anonymous Donor.

A high school costing between $350,000 and $400,000 has been offered as a gift to St. Louis University by an unnamed friend of the institution.

Announcement of the gift was made last night by the Rev. M. J. O'Connor, president of the university, at a meeting of the St. Louis University Endowment Committee, and was followed by a report that $145,000 had been added to the centennial fund, making the total to date $1,062,923.79.

Plans have been drawn and approved for an addition to the institute of law on Lindell boulevard to cost $100,000, and plans have been approved for the erection of a new building for the dental college at Grand avenue and Caroline street, to cost $100,000.

Needed to Relieve Congestion. It was stated that the new high school, which is much needed because of the crowded condition of St. Louis Academy and Loyola Hall, the two preparatory branches of the university, will have a capacity for from 1000 to 1200 students. It is expected that work on the new building will be completed in time for its opening to be part of the centennial celebration of the coming of the Jesuit Fathers to Missouri, which will be observed in 1923. Work on the law and dental buildings will commence this spring.

The erection of the new high school will greatly relieve congestion in the main university buildings at Grand avenue and West Pine boulevard, permitting them to be used exclusively for college and professional school purposes. The new building will be the only preparatory branch conducted by the Jesuits in St. Louis and upon its opening will be dedicated with the name of the benefactor, whose identity will not be disclosed until that time.

Loyola Site Considered. The location of the new high school has not been determined. A city block at Compton and Eads avenues, where the former home of Capt. Eads is now used as Loyola Hall, and which is owned by the university, together with at least two other sites, is under consideration. The largest individual sum thus far donated to the endowment fund was stated to be in excess of $35,000 and is credited to a man whose identity is concealed under the name "Secretum." Other recent donations include those of Mrs. James Butler, $10,000; William Marritt Bates, $10,000; John K. Broderick, $10,000; Edward L. Butler, $10,000; Joseph M. Dooley, $10,000; Lawrence Kullen, $10,000; Chris J. Muckerman, $10,000; Bernard M. Murphy, $10,000; "Anonymous," $10,000; and Mr. Tannath, rector of Old Cathedral, $1000. The amount of endowment sought is $2,000,000.

What is Bright's Disease?

"Bright's Disease, the common name for nephritis or disease of the kidneys. In acute nephritis, the patient may have merely slight headache, pain in the back and in the legs, loss of appetite and nausea; or he may have fever, prostration, stupor, twitching, shortness of breath and convulsions. The urine generally contains albumen and casts and there may be dropsy of the legs."

POWERS HELD TO BLAME FOR CHINA'S ILLS BY EDUCATOR

Canton College President Sees in Japan's Policy an Imitation of That of Other Nations.

The western Powers are as much to blame as Japan for China's condition today, said Dr. Charles K. Edmunds, president of the Canton (China) Christian College, who speaks before the Wednesday Club this afternoon on conditions in China.

He added that Japan's policy toward China is only an imitation of that of other nations.

"China is being fought for by two rival Governments today," Dr. Edmunds said. "The Peking government is corrupt and militaristic and would have fallen long ago but for the recognition of the powers and the support of Japanese money. The Canton, or southern, government is a decent, able government. It has failed to win recognition in part because it refuses to ratify financial and economic concessions of a highly exploitative and extortionate nature wrung by the British from military invaders of the Canton province. China will never emerge from its financial straits unless it is given a free hand in its tariff making."

BLOCK AT ROCHEPORT BURNED

COLUMBIA, Mo., Jan. 11.—An entire business block, with the exception of Eyfield's store, was destroyed by fire early today at Rocheport. Among the business houses and stock destroyed were Harris' general store, Dimmitt's drug store, Ridgeway's store and the offices of Dr. M. P. Ansell, physician, and Dr. S. F. Hyatt, dentist. The fire was without an organized fire department.

In steamboat days Rocheport was one of the most thriving towns in Missouri. The loss so far is estimated at $75,000.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 11.—A program of new road construction amounting to probably $10,000,000 to be begun during the year is blocked out in the rough by State Highway Commission, Chairman Gary today informed the Dispatch. This contemplates the issuance of possibly $5,000,000 of bonds, which will be available for the purpose of financing the work. The commission today passed 55 projects totalling $1,800,000 highway construction in various parts of the State which will be advertised preparatory to letting of contracts and, after a number of resolutions of the commission, the project will be put to a vote of the legislature.

The next session of the commission will be Feb. 14, when Chairman Gary will be absent on a trip to Europe. However, the three members are expected to meet and transact the business of the commission which may demand attention.

Murray Carleton of St. Louis, one of the members, did not attend the session, his presence having been required in the East by business affairs.

None of the $5,000,000 may be issued before March, should the bond machinery escape suspension by the referendum which has been threatened by members of the Missouri Farmers' Association, of which William C. Columbia is a leader.

Should no referendum be made it would be possible to issue $10,000,000 of the bonds during the year. The three members of the commission who are here at the meeting, Chairman Gary and members S. S. Connett of St. Louis and C. D. Matthews of St. Louis, adopted a resolution, however, pledging themselves not to issue more than 1,000 of bonds this year, and issue any bonds whatever the commission had "provided expenditure in each county portion due under the Missouri Cullough law," which in Missouri is $500,000. This is expected to cause any delay of the new program.

Gary Expresses Opinion While one purpose of the commission was to satisfy the request of the Missouri Farmers' Association of the policy the commission intended to follow, Gary was convinced, from advice given by a survey of the situation, that the commission, that the outlined is all that can be done for the year.

Members of the commission, however, contemplate construction of culverts and hard surfacing at various points in the State, depending on the results of a survey of the situation, that the outlined is all that can be done for the year.

$10,000,000 ROAD PROGRAM FOR THIS YEAR IS BEING BLOCKED OUT BY STATE

Proposed Outlay Is in Addition to $2,000,000 Work Already Financed and Contemplates $5,000,000 Bond Issue.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 11.—A program of new road construction amounting to probably $10,000,000 to be begun during the year is being blocked out in the rough by the State Highway Commission, Chairman Gary today informed the Post-Dispatch. This contemplates the issuance of possibly $5,000,000 of the $10,000,000 bonds this year, to match federal aid, which will be available. This outlay would be in addition to projects which already have been financed and some of which already are under construction, totaling approximately $12,000,000. The commission today passed on 15 projects totaling $1,800,000 for highway construction in various parts of the State which now are to be advertised preparatory to the awarding of contracts and, after adopting a number of resolutions dealing with minor points of policy, adjourned.

The next session of the commission will be Feb. 14, when Chairman Gary will be absent on a tour of Europe. However, the three other members are expected to meet and transact the business of the department which may demand attention. Murray Carleton of St. Louis, one of members, did not attend the January session, his presence having been required in the East by private affairs.

None of the $5,000,000 bonds may be issued before March 1, even should the bond machinery law escape suspension by the referendum. Gary has been threatened by some members of the Missouri Farmers' Association, of which William Hirth of Columbia is a leader. Should the referendum attack be made it would be possible to issue $10,000,000 of the bonds during this year. The three members of the commission who are here at the January session, Chairman Gary and Commissioners S. W. Connett of Fawcett and C. D. Matthews of Cape Girardeau, adopted a resolution yesterday, however, pledging themselves in effect not to issue more than $5,000,000 of bonds this year, and not to issue any bonds whatever until the commission had "provided for the expenditure in each county of the money due under the Morgan McCullough law," which in round numbers is $500,000. This is not expected to cause any delay of consequence in the new program.

While one purpose of the resolution was to satisfy the referendum faction of the Missouri Farmers' Association of the policy the commission intends to follow, Gary said he was convinced, from advice of engineers and a survey of problems of the commission, that the program outlined is all that can be begun this year economically. Members of the commission said their plans contemplate grading, construction of culverts and bridges and hard surfacing at various places in the State, depending on the needs, only one or two of these operations probably being required on some stretches of road and perhaps all of them on others. Resurfacing of some sections of the highway under the hard surface has become dilapidated and is about to be lost would be given attention. One engineer was detailed to examine and report on these roads.

The commission also will begin at once an investigation of conditions surrounding the handling of motor trucks, tractors and road machinery valued at about $5,000,000, which have been received from the Federal Government for distribution to the counties for road work. Completion was made. Much scattering complaint had been made regarding some of the transactions involved in placing these equipments. One vigorous kick yesterday was from a delegation of county officials of Adair county, who charged that $750 had been required of that county, at the rate of $250 each on three trucks, ostensibly to be toward the construction of a garage here to house the Federal equipment pending distribution and to which use it had not been put. Employees of the department said this was error, and that the $750 was to cover the cost of auxiliary parts for the trucks, to replace the originals which, by mistake, had been sent by the Federal officials to Nebraska.

This complaint was heard in executive session by the commission which received delegations throughout the day behind closed doors, a delegation being invited in after the preceding group had been disposed of. This aroused some criticism from the waiting delegations which were being taken to the highway commission. The commissioners said that a survey of the equipment in the hands of counties would be made to determine whether all is being used as intended, to establish that none of it is being used for private advantage, and to make certain that proper care is being taken of it. The financial transactions connected with the payment of freight charges by the counties on this machinery also will be audited and revised, they stated.

Office at Kansas City. Prospect of much of the important business of the department in future will be transacted in Kansas City instead of Jefferson City, as has been the case, developed with a decision to open an office in Kansas City, where Chairman Gary maintains the principal headquarters of his extensive private business. Gary was authorized to hire and equip offices.

Rolen J. Windrow, who recently resigned as Chief Highway Engineer of Texas to become Consulting Highway Engineer at Gary's $12,000 a year, was elected consulting engineer to the commission and personal representative of the chairman at $1 a year, and was designated to take charge of the Kansas City office, subordinate in which are to be designated by the Chief Engineer of the commission.

Henry Conrad of Kansas City, who, like Gary, originally came from Macon, Mo., and who is attorney for one of Gary's private enterprises, was elected counsel to the commission at $3 a year, the salary fixed by statute.

Edwin S. Austin of Jefferson City, who was secretary to the old commission, was elected temporary secretary to the new body, it being desired to make no change in the personnel of the department for the present.

Temporary blanket authority was extended to all highway associations in the State to continue marking their various routes, pending the working out of a permanent State system of road markers, as contemplated in the new highway law, which provides that no road markers may be put up unless authorized by the commission.

The long-pent hatred of Europeans burst out. If this is not the correct view it is difficult to understand why the police should have joined in, or why the soldiers of the Third Battalion, Egyptian army, who had arrived from Cairo only the day before, should have forgotten their discipline and used their arms to shoot down Europeans in the streets. "Given similar circumstances, this feeling will always manifest itself in the future, as it has done in the past, and a very long period of time must elapse before this feeling can be eradicated."

PROPOSAL MADE TO SETTLE STRIKE IN TRANSVAAL MINES
By the Associated Press.
JOHANNESBURG, South Africa, Jan. 11.—An unexpected overture for settlement of the strike in the gold and coal mines, was made yesterday by the Miners' Federation, after the arrival here of Premier Smuts. Acting upon the men's suggestion, the Premier called a joint meeting of the employers and the union, at which the federation submitted as a basis for discussion the withdrawal of all notices, under the stipulation that wages be reduced until the margin between the assumed increase in cost of living and the actual increase had disappeared.

MAINE REPUBLICAN DENOUNCES DYER'S ANTILYNCH BILL

Congressman Says He Could Not Support Measure Without Violating Oath to Constitution.

"PARTY OWES NOTHING TO COLORED PEOPLE"

"I Refuse to Be Politically Blackmailed," Madden Speaks for Bill and Tillman Against It.

By a Washington Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—The debate on the Dyer antilynching bill yesterday developed opposition from an unexpected quarter, when Representative Hersey, Republican, Maine, urged his colleagues in the House not to make the matter a party measure, and declared he could not support it without violating his oath to the Constitution. Hersey predicted the measure could not stand before the Supreme Court. He contended that the Chicago platform of the Republican party never contemplated a Federal antilynching law.

"The politicians at Chicago," he declared, "had more tact than to advocate legislation in violation of the Constitution or an antilynching bill like this, which would endanger the success of the Republican party in the 1924 presidential campaign. President Harding never advocated any such legislation as the Dyer bill, any such legislation as the Dyer bill."

"No Deal or Bargain." "I want to say as a Republican that there is no deal or bargain made by the Republican party to pay off the alleged debt of honor to the colored people nothing and for one I refuse to be politically blackmailed."

Madden said that "human life" should be taken only after the most sacred and painstaking legal consideration and that "crime should be punished" only after a fair trial in the courts. The Constitution of the United States guarantees life, liberty and property, he said.

"The antilynching bill pending before the House is not a bill in favor of the protection of the colored people," he said. "It is in favor of law and order. It is in favor of law enforcement. It is a bill to provide for the enforcement of the law in the protection of the nation where the political units of the nation refuse to enforce it themselves."

Arkansas's Views.

Representative Tillman, Democrat, Arkansas, attacked the bill and its advocates as "making war against the philosophy of our system of government" and as "seeking to destroy all that is left of local self-government."

"The speaker declared the United States should not accept an invitation to the proposed economic conference at Genoa unless stipulation is made that the question of cancellation of the allied debts to the United States shall not come up."

TO "FOLLOW COST OF EGG FROM HEN TO THE TABLE"

Attorney-General Daugherty Announces Broadening of Retail Price Investigation but Policy Towards Trade Associations Is Not Decided.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—At a conference with Secretaries Hoover and Davis, Attorney-General Daugherty announced yesterday that it was virtually decided to broaden the retail price investigation of the Justice Department to include the cost of various commodities from their origin to the consumer and to make the survey jointly by the three departments.

A committee composed of a member from each department, he added, would be appointed to conduct the investigation. More extensive investigation is necessary, Daugherty declared, in order that the public may know the "cost of the egg as it travels from the hen to the breakfast table," and the Government plans to study the whole field of prices and costs of manufacturing and production. Just what commodities will be covered in the investigation, he said, has not yet been determined, but indicated that clothing, food and fuel would be included in the survey.

To Use Minnesota Data. It also was planned, he continued, to make use of data gathered by the Minnesota Agricultural Experiment Station, which has been conducting a study of the cost of production of various commodities in that State. The investigation, he said, would be conducted by the three departments.

Legitimate functions of trade associations would be encouraged by the Justice Department, Daugherty declared, but no concessions would be made which would weaken the rules laid down by the decision.

HOUSE BILL AIMED AT LANAI, HAWAII, IS RICHEST FOR ETHNOLOGICAL STUDY

Bishop Museum Attache Returns From Lanai Island With Many Relics.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.
LANAI, one of the oldest, if not the oldest, of the Hawaiian Islands, is the richest of the archipelago for ethnological study, according to Kenneth T. H. Bishop, attaché at the Bishop Museum here, who returned recently from a thorough survey of the island. He brought back a large number of objects and pictures which he expects to use in the comparative study of the people of all the islands in the South Pacific, by the museum in conjunction with Yale University.

The island contains a large number of relics and ruins, many so ancient that the living Hawaiians have no traditions regarding them, and there are people who contend that probably were the work of some race which preceded the Hawaiians, he said.

"This, however, is improbable," he added, "there are no fresh craters on Lanai, which has more continuous area of level fertile country than any other island in the group. It has not been determined at which geological stage these islands came into existence."

"The skeletons of eight pigs were found together. They were no doubt offered by a 'kahuna' (medicine man) to some god, while praying another person to death. While burning the offering the kahuna would pray over some object which had belonged to the victim."

"In some districts practically every large and smooth rock has petroglyphs either engraved, pitted or abraded on them in sizes varying from 3 inches to 2 feet in height. Possibly some of the tell stories, but there is no clue as to what these stories might be."

GANDHI EXPLAINS HIS THEORY OF REVOLT BY NON-VIOLENCE

Indian Leader Issues Statement as Result of Bombay Rioting on Prince of Wales' Arrival.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.
MUMBAI, Jan. 11.—Mahatma Gandhi has issued a statement deprecating violence and resistance to constituted authority, and explaining his theory of resistance by non-violence. The statement was issued as a result of the Bombay rioting upon the arrival of the Prince of Wales, in which seven were killed and 200 injured. Gandhi's statement says: "The hope of reviving mass civil disobedience has, in my opinion, once more been dashed to pieces. The atmosphere for mass civil disobedience is absent."

"We were, under the pledge, bound to protect the person of the Prince from any harm or insult, and we broke that pledge inasmuch as we used force to injure or insult a single European or any other who took part in the welcome. I can't think my own responsibility. I am more responsible than any other in more instruments than any other in myself not fully capable of controlling and disciplining that spirit."

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—Opposition of newspapers to enactment of proposed antismuggling legislation, which would prohibit the publication of racing odds and other data which could be used in betting, was voiced yesterday before a Senate judiciary subcommittee by S. E. Thomson, general manager of the Chicago Tribune and a representative of the legislative committee of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association. The subcommittee was held by the Senate, and in a bill introduced by Senator Sterling, Republican, South Dakota. The committee announced last night there would be no further hearings.

Few Papers Publish Odds. While not specially authorized by the 550 newspapers comprising the association to speak for them, Thomson stated that he had submitted to practically all the larger newspapers a summary of his statement, and that all except one supported his position. He declared that not more than 10 per cent of the members of the association print racing entries with the odds or racing results with the odds and that 90 per cent of the papers, without any Federal law to coerce them, had voluntarily discontinued such reports. He asserted that the newspapers had a higher standard of public propriety than the supporters of the bill, and related the "normal principles of decency which control the press as other members of the community."

Newspapers do not print betting odds to promote gambling any more than they print accounts of murders to promote homicides, he declared. Middlemen who control the betting threat against the right of newspapers to print the news, a right which the newspapers have not abused in the past.

A declaration by Dr. Chase that the danger to the newspapers lay in being led into the "iniquitous business" which was seeking to take away the liberties of the people by placing them within "the complete control of the gambling ring, and that 'the enemies of the people are those powers which control the press for selfish purposes' brought from the association a return that legislation was the only control of the press he knew, although attempts had been made in various ways to influence it. Nothing could, in his judgment, more affect the attitude of the press, he said, than such "coercive" language as that of Dr. Chase.

Cleveland Man Gives Views. There are more than 2000 daily newspapers in the country, Baker said, and an overwhelming majority of them do not carry racing news. Publishers of the newspapers, with here and there an exception, he declared, are high-minded men, and as such are engaged in any profession, with as high a sense of public duty and public spirit as any. He advised the committee of the co-operation of the newspapers of Cleveland at all times in all measures of public welfare, telling of effective work rendered in suppressing what he referred to as a crime wave.

He estimated that 99 out of every 100 newspapers did not consider the proposed legislation necessary, and asserted that all would find it a material increase in the ordinary difficulties of getting out a newspaper. The proposed legislation, he contended, was more a censorship than the suppression of gambling.

Borah Refers to Soviets. The freedom of the press, McCormick stated, was not a privilege. Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, a member of the committee, declared the situation presented was that of the growth of the bureaucracy of the Government, which, he asserted, was rapidly placing this Government under the soviet form.

Henry D. Oxnard of this city, representing "a million" who want horse race news, stated he was a horse man, that he liked to put a small bet when he played cards, and appealed to the committee not to "take all the joy out of life" by the passage of the bill.

BILL PROHIBITING RACE TRACK NEWS MEETS OPPOSITION

Newspaper Representatives Voice Views on Measure Which Would Prevent Transmission of "Odds."

LLOYD GEORGE'S WORDS ON BRITISH DOMINIONS ARE NOT PLEASING TO CANADIANS

Feeling That Outlying Parts of Empire Have Too Many Duties and Too Few Privileges Accented by Irish Arrangement.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

TORONTO, Jan. 11.—Sharp issue is taken by some Canadian publicists with the definition of dominion status set forth by Lloyd George in the debate on the Irish treaty.

As far as domestic affairs are concerned there is no controversy. In Lloyd George's characteristically graphic phrase, "Dominion status means that the dominions are rulers of their own hearth." And if in connection with Ireland there is to be exception of taxation to cover a proportion of the national debt, control of coast defenses and limitations on military establishments, certain qualifications of this definition it is recognized that these are but exceptions due to Ireland's position and in no way affect the existing constitutional status of other dominions.

It was when Lloyd George came to deal with the status of the dominions in external affairs that he offended Canadian susceptibilities. While he declared that the position of the dominions in this respect had been "completely revolutionized" in the last four years and that they now have "equal rights with Great Britain in the control of foreign policy," he provided, with an alleged statement of facts and definition of status to which exception is taken.

What Lloyd George Said. He said: "The machinery of foreign policy is still in the hands of the British Government—the Foreign Office, the Ambassadors. The machinery must remain here. It is impossible that it could be otherwise, unless you had a council of empire where you had representatives elected for the purpose. Apart from that you must act through one instrument. The instrument of foreign policy is the Foreign Office. That has been accepted by all the dominions as inevitable."

This passage has aroused in Canada a whole swarm of bristling questions. When, for example, did all the dominions accept as inevitable the arrangement outlined? How does the declaration that the sole machinery must remain the machinery of the British Government fit in with the repeated decisions of the Canadian Parliament to appoint a Canadian Minister at Washington? What possible control can the government of dominions have over the existing British Foreign Office manned exclusively by appointees of the British Government? If the personnel and the machinery of the Foreign Office are to remain the same, what effective steps can be taken by the dominions to secure a change? How can the dominions have equal rights in foreign policy when the sole machinery for carrying it out is to be the existing British Foreign Office?

Lloyd George in the same speech went on to say that British foreign policy is now discussed by the imperial conference, and that the conference last summer discussed British policy in Germany, in Egypt, in America, more particularly "our troubles in Upper Silesia, the Ruhr Valley, Angola and Egypt, and the problems of the Pacific, Honolulu, Philippines, Nagasaki and Peking. This obviously was when the voice of the dominions was heard. But the imperial conference has no control over the Foreign Office, which is to remain the sole machinery for carrying out foreign policy and which the spirit of the personnel is also inevitably remain the predominant influence in determining what modifications or changes of policy are expedient. Often, in foreign affairs, the spirit of the personnel is more important than a hard and fast definition of policy. But the imperial conference cannot appoint a single Ambassador. It cannot dismiss a single subordinate clerk. It is the least important embassy. All such effective control remains the prerogative of a single member of the imperial conference, the member representing Great Britain.

Dominion Can't Quite See It. Lloyd George continued: "The advantage to us (Great Britain) is that joint control means joint responsibility." This seemed to mean that the debating society discussions of the imperial conference are regarded as "joint control." And if one day an army of a million men has to be sent into Mesopotamia or Egypt or Silesia, the dominions are to be expected to share in the cost in blood and treasure, because Mesopotamia and Egypt and Silesia were discussed at an imperial conference.

The position in which such an arrangement places the dominions may well be regarded as one of some gravity, though Mr. Lloyd George can light-heartedly explain: "When the burden of empire has become so vast it is well that we should have the shoulders of these young giants under the burden." And he added: "The arrangement of this kind is along."

Dominion Control Mythical. Joint responsibility must follow real joint control, but how does the imperial conference control? The arrangement of this kind is along."

Commenting further on Lloyd George's definition of "Dominion status and on the failure of last year's imperial conference to fix a time and place for an imperial constitutional conference, the Free Press says: "The conference threw over the idea of a constitutional conference and proceeded itself, secretly, to define constitutional relationships in the very important field of international affairs; and these decisions Lloyd George has proclaimed as the accepted law of the Empire. It has to be pointed out that these startling innovations, having implications of the most extensive character, have never been considered by the Canadian people or by the Canadian Parliament. Until the consent of the Canadian Parliament is given to the arrangement as to foreign policy outlined by Lloyd George, it is in no sense binding upon this country. That that consent will never be obtained we take the liberty of predicting."

Canadian objection to the continued exclusive jurisdiction of the existing Foreign Office might be modified if that institution was regarded as completely responsive to even British public opinion. But it is feared that sometimes, owing to its traditions and personnel, it is inclined to become a law unto itself. Another consideration which undoubtedly is having an effect on Canadian opinion is the appointment emanating from the Foreign Office to such proposals as that of a Canadian Minister at Washington.

Whether the new Canadian Government will make an appointment is a matter of much speculation. The appointment would be a step toward real joint control of foreign affairs and would involve proportionate joint responsibility. It will be that consideration of what this responsibility would be in one reason why Canada has delayed in making the appointment. Further, there is no doubt that on the part of practically all Canadian public men not to cause embarrassment to British interests or to British representatives. They feel it is better to make haste slowly than to do that. It may be that some other and better way of securing a real control over the dominions' foreign affairs will develop. But that some way must be found is regarded as inevitable. The logic of events is a stern propagandist.

New Government "Pro-Canadian." Whether Premier King will insist on the holding of a constitutional imperial conference at which this question of foreign relations will be respected and redressed is an open question. One of his French Canadian Lieutenants, Ernest Lapointe, served notice on Mr. Meighen before he went to the imperial conference last summer that any decision he agreed to would not be regarded as binding by the Canadian Parliament. But there has never been any clear statement as to all the imperial decisions Mr. Meighen agreed to. During the first half of the conference, Mr. Meighen's utterances were fully reported in Canada. That was when he achieved a reputation as a resolute Canadian autonomist. That also seems to have been the time when he offended Lord Beaverbrook of the London Express and Atholstan of the Montreal Star, both of whom savagely attacked him since his defeat. Later Mr. Meighen seems to have agreed to the shelving of the constitutional conference and the definition of dominion status in foreign affairs that is now arousing controversy. It is by no means certain, however, that the new Government will prove to be any more generous autonomists than were the Meighen and Borden Governments. Among French Canadians, who number half of Mr. King's supporters, leaders like Mr. Lapointe and Senator Dandurand are authorities on constitutional matters but outside nationalists like Mr. Bourassa, most French Canadians are not aggressive autonomists. For them even the old colonial status had some advantages.

As for Mr. King, grandson of a "rebel," he may in some respects prove more accommodating than Mr. Meighen or Sir Robert Borden. It is quite a mistake to assume as some British periodicals seem to do that there is anything anti-British about the new Government. It may be that it will be no more pro-Canadian than its predecessors.

Melville Stone, Long General Manager of the Associated Press, Writes a Fascinating Book on His 50 Years in Journalism—Translation of 'Niels Lyhne' by Peter Jacobsen Reveals to America Another Powerful Norse Novelist—"Pacific Triangle" an Interesting Consideration of Our Pacific Problem

By OTTO HELLER.

"FIFTY YEARS A JOURNALIST," by Melville Stone, counselor of the Associated Press, half-tone illustrations from photographs. Line cuts by Paul Brown. (Doubleday, Page & Co.)

MELVILLE STONE was a correspondent in Washington when the great Civil War characters were still on the stage. As a young man he founded the Chicago Daily News. For the past 50 years he has been the most powerful press organization in the world, the Associated Press, and by virtue of this position one of the most influential persons in the world. For the past 20 years he has been in close touch with all national and international affairs of moment and he has numbers among his friends or acquaintances practically all the public characters in this country and throughout the world.

So much for the man. His book describes from personal experience almost of the great world events from the Chicago fire in 1871 to the signing of the peace of Versailles in 1919. There are reminiscences of General Grant, Sherman, Butler, Presidents Johnson, McKinley, Roosevelt, Taft, Lehigh, Wood, Wilson, the last Kaiser and the last Czar, and of many living men of prime eminence. Of particular charm are the intimate pictures of personal friends, such as the late Field, Mark Twain, Charles Stewart Parnell, Field, Col. Harvey, George Ade, John T. McCutcheon and Bill Neale all served on his staff when he edited the Chicago Daily News. No less interesting than these associations will be the big newsmen's contact with celebrities of the underworld, like his burglar friend, Dick Lane, or "a racial name," Smith, Chicago in days but slightly precedent to these was a hotbed of corruption, teeming with criminals of every conceivable kind. Mr. Stone thinks that law robbers and house-breakers did occasionally reform, reform politicians rarely, and defaulting bank presidents never.

Being now 73 years of age, Mr. Stone has been since 1913 what he calls a "post-ethic life," demonstrating by keeping aloof from the management of the daily service that the Associated Press is not organized as a commercial concern. That posterity weaves no ivy wreaths for the famous journalist is a misfortune which he shares with the mimic artist. His effect, even as the actor's, is seen within his lifetime. Yet were influence susceptible of measurement it might easily transpire that the exceptional editor-translator of average statesman or diplomat in his power of shaping public opinion—for good or ill.

The far outreach of the influence of newspapers is often denied nowadays, and it is even believed in wide circles that the editorial section of the daily is ignored by most of its readers. The truth, I think, is that editorials are read by a vast multitude, but that like the real of the paper they are read superficially. Says this expert journalist: "Newspaper reading tends to be superficial, and the American citizen is superficial. As T. P. O'Connor once said when I asked him for a final judgment upon our people: 'They are the best half-educated lot in the world.' Newspaper reading is a malady with us."

A good newspaper is made to serve everybody; to please everybody is different, and impossible. Mr. Stone's devotion to a high standard of veracity exposed him more than once to severe censure by a prejudiced public. When the death of Leo XIII was reported in a manner befitting the pontiff, he excited a number of Methodist newspapers asserted that Stone was a Catholic and controlled by Vatican influence, when as a matter of fact his father was a Methodist minister and his mother a descendant of one of John Wesley's coadjutors. On the other hand when the A. P. reported the Marquis de Montebello's renunciation of the Catholic faith, certain Catholic newspapers flew into a rage and asserted that Stone was an anti-Catholic bigot.

The contrast between the principles of the A. P. and certain French journalistic practices was once demonstrated to Mr. Stone by his friend, Gaston Calmette, the famous editor of the "Figaro" (who was killed by Mme. Caillaux). One day "Figaro" printed what purported to be a circumstantial telegraphic story of the massacre of many citizens of New York by savage Indians who invaded Broadway. It was not at all a whimsical hoax, to be exposed and laughed over the next day; it was a calculated insult to the readers. Stone upbraided Calmette for it. "Nonsense," the latter replied. "You are too serious with your ideas of accuracy. There are, among the readers of the 'Figaro,' thousands of the dominion, to whom this story is more interesting and pleasing than any of the commonplace you all news."

The 14 half-tones in the book and very numerous text illustrations will be appreciated by anyone interested in contemporary history.

In giving authentic information about the activities of the Associated Press, Mr. Stone has brought home the meaning of the organization as one of the great social forces of the world, and corrected whatever erroneous opinion may be latent resarding its purpose, principles and management. "Fifty Years" is an expert tale-bearer's truthful tale.

"NIELS LYHNE," by J. Peter Jacobsen. Translated from the Danish by Hanna Astrup Larsen. (Doubleday, Page & Co.)

WORK which has greatly influenced the trend of modern literature. In Europe 20 years ago it was in every hand and every tongue. It is a story of a struggling young poet whose hypersensitive soul finds at every contact with life's asperities, yet is healed and buoyed by the splendor of his illusions. The inevitable Scandinavian gloom that hovers over his life is dispelled in the happiness of a congenial marriage by which all his exquisite illusions are translated to perfection into reality. Niels Lyhne is a novel at once delicate and strong, beautiful and vigorous, natural and distinguished. Its isolated reputation in this country may betray our long literary hibernation; at the same time it betokens a gradual awakening from our extended intellectual repose.

"AMERICAN HISTORY AND GOVERNMENT," by Matthew Page Andrews. (J. B. Lippincott Co.)

HISTORY, contrary to accepted opinion, is the most subjective of the "inexact" sciences, not solely in the interpretation but also in the fixation of its data. With this fact the perpetuity of racial animosities has not a little to do. Perhaps the scholastic breeding of an international genus of historiographers to replace the prevailing array of patriotic special pleaders might mark a long move toward the millennial rule of peace.

Great wars change not alone the future course of history, they likewise alter the views concerning the past. For this reason history, domestic as well as foreign, has to be rewritten periodically. The national evolution of America with diligence and discretion, and has taken peculiar pains to submit to people of opposite sympathies their "muted matters" of American history for personal evaluation. 142 illustrations and 18 black and white maps are found in the text. There are also a frontispiece and two maps in full color.

"THE HOPE OF THE FUTURE," by Edward E. Eagle. (The Cornhill Co.)

WRITING books is not this author's business. International commerce is. A tenacious optimism made him believe that "the Americas for once would prefer to be criticized rather than complimented." Where did he get that stuff?

His field of observation was wide, and his book is a promise what he had planned in travels that led him from the fashionable resorts of Europe to the wilds of Borneo; the endeavor being, throughout, to interpret for Americans the life, customs, and spirit of the British empire and more especially of the dominions.

The author has secured a high order of recommendation for his volume by obtaining a set of forewords from the pens of President Harding and the Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George, Arthur Meighan, William Morris Hughes, William Massey and Sir James Craig.

"COAL GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP OR CONTROL," by D. J. McAdam. (Authors and Publishers Company, Inc.)

FOR a large part of the coal land, private ownership seems the best plan to the author. For one part of the coal field, however, Government ownership is imperative. The book is written from the viewpoint that coal is a public utility. To waste coal as it is being wasted is a sin against the whole people.

"HAIL," by J. Dryden Kiser. (Richard G. Heyer, Houghton Mifflin Co.)

NOW that the bandit seems to have subsided in that entranced land whose fates are guided by Uncle Sam conjointly with a native Government—or should we say now that the outlaw at home has outstripped his exotic competitor and insured us to the terror, the acquiescence of Hail is doled to the tourist and also for the industrial investor.

In the Literary Letter Box

"BACK TO METHUSEN," by Bernard Shaw, is still receiving much critical attention. Opinions about it are, though a wide range, but indubitably Shaw's own conviction that his gift as a writer is entitled to some weight in the estimate of his work. Mr. Shaw's publisher (Brentano's), by the way, has performed a great disservice for the most brilliant of contemporary writers by putting the pages of "Back to Methuseh" to be pockmarked with unforgivable typographic blunders to a disgusting and disconcerting degree.

The North American Review, discussing the message of the curious Darwinian concept, gives a fair description of Shaw by a qualified English committee, received three nominations for the proffered money prize, via "The Young's Black Diamond." Edgar Macaulay's "Dangerous Ages," and Katharine Mansfield's "Bliss and Other Stories." The Post-Dispatch would be interested to learn its readers' choice as between these three.

"THE STORY OF MAN," by Hendrik Van Loon, has just passed into its third edition. By exceptional readability and engaging illustrations its historical contents are certainly a naïveté for children and adults alike.

In a speech delivered before the Illinois Library Association at Urbana, Ill., on Jan. 10, 1915, on the serious question whether the unrestricted and unregulated use of the public library is an unmitigated educational blessing for the masses, or a source of danger to the community, the publisher of Thorstein Veblen's "The Engineers and the Price System" (A. W. Huesbeck): "The library is a source of danger to the community, if it is not controlled by an enlightened and responsible body."

It is a good sign for the artistic sensibility of a contingent of young writers, that when assembled with critical objections they rush to their own defense in the press. There is much to be said in favor of the artist's right to be "left alone." "The artist, who does not talk" is not one of the great master's wisest injunctions.

MANY well-read persons there must be to whom the name of Herman Melville rings a bell. He died in 1891, and the only important account of him has just been printed. It will be reviewed on this page in the near future.

Instead, "The Pacific Triangle" so far departs from tradition and the ethics of all the South Sea cult as to present conditions as they actually are, red-hot and glowing, and with none of the stereotyped prosopopoeia of the average book of travel. A modern work on travel must have some element of originality to survive, and Sydney Greenleaf has imparted this accessory to his book. His travels took him throughout the Antipodes as well, and his descriptions of Australia and New Zealand, where he lived with residents, the footings of a member of their families, are distinctly interesting. He lived with a Maori half caste family for a time, while in New Zealand, and this chapter opens up a new phase of life in that region with which we, on this side of the globe, are little familiar.

His article upon Japan, of course, cannot ignore the chief bone of contention in writings concerning the Japanese—the treatment of the Japanese upon the Pacific coast. And, in view of the constant complaint by Japanese about the California land laws, it is a curious note that in Japan a foreigner can not only not own any land in his own right, but that even a lease of property is difficult to secure and is broken at will by the Japanese landlord without any legal recourse for the foreigner. The law, he says, seems fair enough on its face. Its first provision is that the person desiring to own land in Japan must be from a country wherein Japanese are permitted to own land. In other words, if America does not allow a Japanese to acquire land, no American can do so in Japan. There could be no complaint on this point. But a second provision excludes foreigners from all districts necessary for the national defense, and practically all the land in Japan could be so classed the privileges accorded to a foreigner, as he expresses it, "mighty short." Foreigners, he says, can own land for business purposes on long time only under conditions that are frequently a hardship and often are insecure. Even ordinary leases are encumbered with some of the inevitable conditions of the law and can be abrogated at any time. He quotes the case of a Catholic priest upon whom the Japanese government was brought to throw up the lease of his little church because it was on ground that had become valuable in a business way—and it was accepted as a foreigner's condition that it was only a question of time how long he would be allowed to remain.

As for naturalization, it is shown that between 1894 and 1913 there are actually on record only nine cases of foreigners having been naturalized in Japan—two of these were Americans, two English and five French. Under the general terms of their law, it would take an alien about 15 years to become a citizen of Japan, and even then, his status would be precarious. The author, it will be recalled, that the late Premier Hara of Japan, assassinated not long since, once expressed himself upon the treatment of foreigners in Japan, as a person who had been treated as a Japanese, and introduced a contemptuous attitude such as does not exist here towards the sons of Nippon. Lafcadio Hearn, who for years idealized everything Japanese, and toward the end of his life, he regretted the situation in which he must leave his family, raised in that country.

"THE MYSTERIOUS RIFLEMAN," by Everett T. Tomlinson. (D. Appleton & Co.)

RATHER lively and interesting incident of the Revolutionary War, in which Col. Bludworth and his men make a sort of fort in a hollow tree and baffle the Tories. The scenes are placed in and around Wilmington, N. C., and emphasize the hardships and the spirit of revolutionary times.

"WASHINGTON CLOSE-UPS," by Edward G. Lowry. (Houghton Mifflin Co.)

In this work the title comes apply enough from the phraseology of the movie world indicates the contents. These, as the title page somewhat, consist of a series of intimate views of certain public figures. And although the voyage of such works as "The Mirrors of Downing Street" and "The American Comment" may lead to the belief that this book also is a somewhat satirical production of the same sort, inspection will show it is written in quite a different vein. Hamilton's comment in "The Mirrors of Downing Street" may have appeared on the surface, it nevertheless betrayed the fierce, personal hostility that prevails in public life among the water. And although Lowry's book contains abundant satire, it is of a humorous sort and of a kind that can be appreciated, if not enjoyed, by the subject of each individual sketch.

Lowry justifies his work by explaining that Washington cries aloud to be written about in an intimate, amusing way. He finds the city different from other social settlements and expresses himself as follows: "The town has a distinctive social life of its own with a flavor and quality that is not elsewhere. The manners of 'abroad.' It has, too, a seductive charm and glamor all its own. The oddity and part of the charm of the Washington condition is just this that while it has the social framework of a world capital, the chief official personages who people the scene are villagers with a villager's outlook and a villager's background."

And a bit further on he adds: "Washington is the most feminine of all cities. It has grace and loveliness and many wanton wiles and above all, that elusive quality and attribute that for want of a better word we call charm. Its seductiveness and glamor have drawn many a good homespun citizen away from his grain and feed business where he belonged into the political morass of officeholders. It has the same effect on small town people that Cleopatra had on Anthony; it makes them forget the homeliest and have dreams which do not come true."

Lowry's picture of our President, whom he classifies as "The Great Emancipator," is best secured by contrasting him in person with President Wilson. He describes a session between President Wilson and the writers of the press as a chill and correct performance, when Mr. Wilson stood behind his desk, the victors filed in in the midst of a cool silence and when someone ventured a tentative question he got a crisp and polite response in the sweetest possible words, unusual and the spirit of the red-

He describes a session between President Wilson and the writers of the press as a chill and correct performance, when Mr. Wilson stood behind his desk, the victors filed in in the midst of a cool silence and when someone ventured a tentative question he got a crisp and polite response in the sweetest possible words, unusual and the spirit of the red-

as the writer describes it, a pleasant time was not had by it. As a contrast, when President Harding was the same thing, he greeted the door, shook hands with each and created the impression that he was the most natural thing for him to do. The seeling was a somewhat breezy chat, in which he answered questions frankly but not indiscreetly and in which there was no stiffness whatever. Other details are given but the above will suffice to carry the contrast.

William Jennings Bryan gets a description in which personal details are not lacking, even to the interruption he sustained while dining on a Pullman in a trip across the continent or the nature of his morning repast at a country restaurant. It would appear to be hard to write in the lighter vein about Gen. Wood, but the author manages to do so.

The array of photographs in the book is one of its best features. The pictures are not stereotyped or conventional and many appear to be original. Taft, Sims, Knox, Lodge, Hughes, Mellon and Perkins are all catalogued and depicted. As a whole, the book lives well up to its name.

"THE GREATEST AMERICAN," by Arthur Hendrick Vandenberg. (P. Putnam's Sons.)

BEFORE entering on his subject of eminent men as a spokesman of prominent men as to whom they consider the greatest American. The opinions differ from Washington, Lincoln, Roosevelt, Jefferson, down to Daniel Webster, it is this a fair way of putting it. Most of the gentlemen whose opinions are quoted preface their statements by saying that it is no absolute rule by which to settle this problem and therefore it must always remain unsettled. The author then gives a good account of Hamilton's varied activities and nominates him for first place, or rather he seconds the motion of Tallmadge, who had said: "I have known nearly all the marked men of my time, but have never known one equal to Hamilton."

"In a business, the man in whom rests the power of final decisions is the great man. His assistants may be more deeply versed in one topic, and undoubtedly they work harder. But the man who apparently does no work, except saying yes or no, and who knows when to say yes and when to say no, is superior to them. If fortune has placed him at the head of a business whose success is more vital to more people than the success of any other business, then this man becomes the greatest of them all. Such a man was Washington, and he alone, and he is clearly 'the greatest American.' Lincoln finished a problem that was left unfinished in the Constitution. He solved it grandly, but it was a 'derived' problem, and also the only great problem which he had to solve. Measured with this standard

Hamilton was only an assistant all his life, brilliant as it was. As for Roosevelt, he was in the presidential chair for seven years, but fortune did not present for him a decision a single vital problem. He is out in the race for first honors.

The diction of this book is quaint. It has all the peculiarities that mark the style of our beloved President Harding, whose letter to the author is also reproduced, so that a comparison is made easy. The book is a masterpiece of perfect order but

CHICAGO AUTO TRADE.

CHICAGO, Jan. 11.—Motor-car manufacturers are preparing for a busy year. This makes the scale $1.12 1/2 an hour and the reduction is expected to aid in promoting building throughout the spring.

DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 11.—Employment has increased rapidly since Jan. 1. Approximately 70,000 men are employed by the 79 firms belonging to the Detroit Employers' Association, while part-time schedules include nearly 22,000 men.

ALTOONA, Pa., Jan. 11.—Pennsylvania Railroad employees in the passenger car plant and upholstery departments, the pipe, tin, electric and smelting shops, and planing mill here have been placed on a 48-hour week schedule instead of 48-hour week, as a result of a conference of railroad officials and representatives of the men. The men decided it was better to reduce working time than to lay off part of the force.

WHEELING, W. Va., Jan. 11.—The Aetna-Standard plant of the United States Steel Corporation resumed operations in full this week. Three of the corporation's plants in the Wheeling district are now operating in full.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Jan. 11.—Steel operations in the Mahoning Valley will expand this week in finished lines. The Youngstown Sheet and Tube Co. will register the largest gain. Twelve of the 17 furnaces in the district are fired. The Carnegie plants will continue with five blast furnaces and 60 per cent of finishing mills in operation. Forty-five of the Valley's 113 sheet mills are producing.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Jan. 11.—A contract for a large amount of electrical equipment to be used in restoring coal mines in devastated sections of France has been received by the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Co.

EL PASO, Tex., Jan. 11.—Rains throughout the Southwest in the week have had a strongly beneficial effect on the condition of wheat in Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico.

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 11.—The local offices of the Central Leather Co. report a very slack demand for leather.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 11.—It has become evident that the weeding out process of the firms of the unstable conditions was pretty thoroughly accomplished before Jan. 1, as there have been no business fatalities of consequence here this year. Local utilities companies which suffered a period of depression after the war, are getting on their feet again. The agreement by which the local transit company will operate a city-built line of elevated railroad which cost taxpayers $15,000,000 is approaching completion and is expected to result in a decided building boom in the northwest section of the city.

Figures made public today show through discounts, bankers' acceptance and foreign trade acceptance, the Federal Reserve Bank of this district loaned nearly $4,000,000 during 1921 in the aid of commerce and industry.

Buyers of old leathers purchased last month for delivery in the latter part of January are insisting on early deliveries, indicating a shortage among shoe manufacturers of this grade of leather. Manufacturers complain this leather is costing them 100 per cent above pre-war prices. Although hides have fallen in price, stocks of shoes are moving freely in retail stores.

CUMBERLAND, Md., Jan. 11.—The local bricklayers' union has made a voluntary reduction of 12 1/2 cents an hour in wages of its members. This makes the scale $1.12 1/2 an hour and the reduction is expected to aid in promoting building throughout the spring.

Making Her Look Her Best

By DORIS DOSCHER.

The Blonde Complexion.
PEOPLE differ so in regard to their skin that what would prove of great benefit to one would have an irritating and bad effect on the skin of the other. But there is a general classification so that we are able to consider separately the blondes, red-haired people and the brunettes. There will be exceptions to the general rule, in which case you will have to use your own judgment and place yourself in the class in which you most naturally fit.

Today we will consider the blondes and at another time the "red heads" and brunettes. When we think of a blonde the picture presented to our mind is usually a very fair skin and blue eyes and tresses of gold, but the blonde is not exempted from skin irritations or blotches and, perhaps, even more than her darker sisters, needs to keep her skin in the pink of condition lest the contrast between the hair and the skin reveal her neglect.

The skin of a blonde usually has a tendency to be dry and scaly and you must be eternally vigilant against wrinkles and flaccidity. The skin is the index of your internal condition, and to keep the pink and white that is your natural heritage you must be sure there is no clogging of the intestines or digestive organs, for the blonde must depend on this clearness of the skin for her chief attraction. It is far easier to guard against wrinkles than to permanently remove them after they have lined the face. Careful attention to the proper lighting, relaxation of the nerves before they become taut enough to reflect their condition in the face and carefully guarding the general health is bound to greatly enhance the beauty of the blonde.

Since the skin is usually dry it requires a little extra care in a preventive way, and you never should undertake an automobile trip or even travel in congested subways without first applying to the skin some protective cream. Those that are used as a protection against sunburn are equally beneficial for protection against dust and grime. Just a cream lotion which has for its foundation almond, cucumber, honey or orris will form a basis for a light powdering and enable a blonde to face the wind without chapping the skin or roughening its texture.

The blonde will have better effects when cleansing her face if she applies a cream first, wipes it off and then uses the mild soap and water, as a blonde skin is usually very sensitive. The way for you to guard against flaccidity, which is a general sagging of the face, is to tone up the muscles of the face with a light massage and an astringent.

I warn you about the too free application of rouge or lipstick. Nature uses the most delicate tinting and coloring in a blonde. To apply a heavy rouge that might be tolerated in a darker complexioned woman is to mar the delicate effect of your beauty and give the appearance of a hard and coarse character, which may be entirely out of keeping with your own personality. If the blonde will take sufficient exercise in the open air, especially at this time of the year, guard her diet, and drink plenty of water she will need no other aid to make her beautiful.

UNCOMMON SENSE

By JOHN BLAKE

HOLDING YOUR GAINS.

KEEPING is even harder than getting. There are plenty of men who through their lives have been successful money makers, but who leave not a cent when they die. There are numbers of men who rise to important positions, remain in them a little while, and then gradually begin to drop back. Success is always a target.

The more important place you attain, the more people will try to get you out of it.

They are not moved by any animus against you. It is a mistake to bear malice against them because they want what you have. All men of ambition want to occupy the best places in the world. Merely because those places happen to be occupied doesn't deter them from seeking them, just the same.

To hold any position that is worth holding requires just as much effort, and just as much thought, as it did to secure it.

If you have made a small success, don't be content with it. More men are qualified to hold small positions than big ones. Therefore more men will be after your small place and there will be a better chance of their getting it.

The wisest course is to go after a higher place yourself, and having attained it, go after a still higher one.

By and by you will shake off a large part of your competitors. The really big places are so hard to get and so hard to hold that not many are in the race for them.

If you are fortunate enough to be able to do something that nobody else can do, your position will be absolutely assured. But only as long as you retain that ability.

If you continue to climb, you are in far less danger of being ousted from what you have gained.

That is going to mean rather more work than you expected to do when you set out. It is going to involve more sacrifice than you may have been prepared to make.

But it is the penalty of success. If you are not prepared to pay that penalty, drop into some little, unimportant job somewhere and try to cultivate the philosophy that you will need while spending your old age in the poorhouse.

The Fortune Hunter

(An Absorbing Love Story.)

By RUBY AYERS

TWENTIETH INSTALLMENT.
Geoffrey Foster had taken off the study fire, smoking a cigarette. He looked thoroughly at home and greeted the Fortune Hunter with a casual nod.

"Good evening,"

The Fortune Hunter walked into the room leaving the door wide open behind him.

"How do you do? Won't you come in the drawing room? Miss Harding is there."

"Thanks, not. My business is with you," The Fortune Hunter raised his eyebrows.

"Really? How extremely interesting."

He took a cigarette from a box on the table, and made a great business of lighting it.

Foster watched him for a moment in silence, then he walked past him, shut the open door with a bang, and came back to the center of the room.

There was a suppressed rage in his eyes, but his voice was even enough when he spoke.

"I saw you in town this afternoon."

The Fortune Hunter glanced up and smiled irritably. "My dear chap! I know that, I saw you, too."

There was a little silence during which the two men looked steadily at one another, and then Foster said again:

"The other night you mentioned that you had been in San Francisco."

"I was there last spring and like most visitors, out of curiosity I went down to the law quarters of the city to have a look at the gambling dens and such places."

"Really! I have been there myself—several times," the Fortune Hunter said coolly.

Foster went on without heeding the interruption:

"There was one man running a gambling place there who interested me very much—partly perhaps, because he was not the usual type one comes across in such places, and I came to the conclusion that he was a gentleman down on his luck—perhaps a man who had been forced to leave his own country to escape the police."

"There was a woman with him," Foster went on. A handsome woman who posed as his wife.

The Fortune Hunter shrugged his shoulders.

"My dear fellow, no doubt this is all very interesting, but why on earth should you tell me to me I quite fail to understand."

"You're flushed dully and for the first time the bitter hatred he felt for the Fortune Hunter shone in his eyes.

"Because you are the man I saw in San Francisco," he said savagely.

"You're altered since those days! I've dropped the scallywag and turned gentleman."

There was a profound silence, then the Fortune Hunter turned round and looked him full in the eyes.

"And how are you going to prove all these interesting statements?" he asked calmly. "After all, it's only your word against mine, you know."

"Deny it!" said Foster. "It will only be one more lie added to the many you have told since you came to Somerset."

For a second the Fortune Hunter stood like a man turned to stone, then he caught Foster by both shoulders with savage hands.

"Say that again—and I'll . . ."

Then all at once he fell back, shaking in every limb and breathing hard. "I beg your pardon—I beg your pardon," he said hoarsely. He stood for a moment, trying desperately to recover his self-control, then he walked to the door and flung it open. "Get out," he said thickly, and again, "Get out!"—and Geoffrey Foster went, with a last backward triumphant smile.

The Fortune Hunter dropped into a chair.

Tommy came to the door and peered inquisitively at him.

"I say, John, what's up with everyone tonight?" he asked uneasily at the Fortune Hunter started up.

"Nothing you need worry about, Tommy," he said. He walked out of the room, leaving Tommy with a queer expression of cunning on his thin face.

"Nothing I need worry about, eh?" . . . he muttered as he looked after the Fortune Hunter's tall figure. "We'll see about that."

An Interrupted Letter.

The Fortune Hunter looked everywhere for Anne after Geoffrey Foster had gone, but the drawing room was empty and the dining room, and it was only after inquiring of one of the maids that he was told she had gone to bed with a headache.

A headache! An excuse to be rid of him; not to see him again that night; the Fortune Hunter went upstairs two at a time and knocked at her door.

He was feeling desperate; he did not fear Foster, or Fernie, or any of the people who might suspect him and make idle threats, but he was half mad at the thought of Anne turning from him.

"Anne . . . Anne . . ."

She did not answer at first, and it was only when he knocked again that he heard her voice.

"My head aches—please leave me alone. I shall be all right in the morning."

Tommy, creeping inquisitively up the stairs, saw the look of despair on the Fortune Hunter's face as he turned away and went to his own room and he smiled, well pleased.

He had never really forgiven that affair of the keys and the opened box; he was a curiously twisted sort of nature that brooded over an imagined wrong long after a broad-minded person would have forgotten all about it, and it seemed to him, in spite of the patched-up peace between them, that he would be rather a fine thing to get his own back on the Fortune Hunter.

He had overheard something of the conversation that evening in the study with Geoffrey Foster, and his shrewd mind had already made four out of less than two and two.

His own room was next to the Fortune Hunter's and for half the night he lay awake, Tommy could hear the sound of restless pacing up and down, up and down.

It was only when daylight came that he saw the Fortune Hunter, who threw himself, still half-dressed, on the bed and fell into a heavy sleep. He woke unrefreshed and with a stabbing headache, and was late for breakfast.

"Couldn't you sleep?" Tommy asked grinning. "I thought I heard you walking about the room ever so late."

The Fortune Hunter answered shortly:

"I've got a vile headache."

He did not glance at Anne, or she would have seen the look of tender concern that flashed in her eyes, though she lowered them instantly.

"She, too, had passed a wakeful night, torn between the growing suspicion in her heart which would not let her believe that the man, who told her that he would never lie to her or deceive her or play her false."

She saw that he looked ill and desperately unhappy, and her heart ached for him; she would have followed him into the garden after breakfast but that Mr. Harding forestalled her and called to the Fortune Hunter to wait for him as he strolled off alone across the grass.

The Fortune Hunter turned, bracing himself with an effort, and Mr. Harding laid a friendly hand on his arm.

"Is anything the matter, John?" he asked in kindly fashion. "You don't look yourself this morning."

The Heart of a Girl

—By
Caroline Crawford

CHAPTER 33.

Cupid Appears at the Office.

For six weeks Peggy had enjoyed her business life. In the absence of Richardson, John Sanford had taught her many valuable lessons. He had proved just the ideal employer she always expected, businesslike, courteous, considerate, did not bawl out things to her across the office but came to her desk when he wished to speak to her, and when she did a good piece of work he told her so.

But now, at the end of the six weeks he would go back to his old position in the bank and Richardson would upset things again. She would detest her work and life would become a matter of watching the clock and longing for Saturday afternoon.

Sometimes, since Sanford had taken her to visit his mother at her Lafayette avenue home, she asked herself if he cared for her. Of course she was young and he was 45, but his fiancée, the girl who had died just a few days before their wedding, was just her age. Would a man who had remained single all these years prefer to marry a young girl, a girl who reminded him of his first love, or would he be happier with a widow or some woman nearer his own age?

While Peggy was pondering her typewriter and dreaming out her girlish problems, John Sanford walked over to her desk and stood looking down at her. Miss Smith had gone to luncheon and they were the only ones in the office.

"My mother has been asking about you," said Sanford, "I can't tell you how much she enjoyed your visit that Saturday afternoon. She has talked about you ever since and said your youth and vivacity did her worlds of good. Will you go to see her again?"

"I wouldn't want to go to see her as your mother," replied Peggy. "I have thought about your wonderful home and charming mother many times. They made a very beautiful picture in my mind."

"Do you mean that, Miss Dayton?"

There was something so serious and yet almost childlike in this man's appearance that Peggy realized the importance of her answer. He seemed to be weighing her words.

"You have a very unusual home in the heart of this great city, a real old-fashioned St. Louis home, and a mother whom one could never forget," Peggy found herself saying, although she knew she was simply following this line of speech because she thought that was the answer which was expected of her.

"I don't believe there is another young woman in this city who would appreciate the old home so much," was saying slowly and thoughtfully, almost as if talking to himself.

"But they would appreciate its worth," thought Peggy as she inwardly repeated the words.

"Miss Dayton," said Sanford suddenly and almost in the tone he might employ if he wanted her to take dictation, "do you think you could possibly care for an old fellow like me?"

Peggy blushed. Her cheeks were not only flame colored, but she could even feel a warm glow behind her thick bobbed hair. She tried to answer but she could not find her voice.

Then, too, she thought of the girl in a way. She thought of the girl that big house, of how she would look in a fur coat and a diamond ring and how it would seem to have a sedan to travel about in. What would Marion Minton think of that? What would her parents think of a match like this? Harrison Townley was well-to-do, but he did not own a home like Sanford's and he did not come from an old family.

The keen gray eyes of Sanford's were searching hers. The disappointment in his first love, his whole life appeared in her eyes and he replied softly, "Yes, I do care."

Neither said a word for a moment. Then Sanford said, "I'll call upon your father tomorrow and tell him my story."

After-Dinner Tricks

Chocolate Raisin Pie.

BAKE pastry shell over inverted pie plate. Cook one-half cup ground seeded raisins in ¼ cup water for 10 minutes. Sift together 3 tablespoons flour, ¼ cup sugar and few grains salt and stir into the raisins. Add 1 cup cream, broken in pieces, and pour into the mixture 1 cup boiling water, stirring constantly while cooking until smoothly thickened. Then add 1 tablespoon butter, ¼ cup cream with yolks of 2 beaten eggs and cook carefully few minutes longer. Add ¼ teaspoon cinnamon and 1-3 cup seeded raisins cut in pieces. Take from fire, cool slightly, pour into baked crust, cover with meringue from stiffly beaten whites of 3 eggs with ¼ teaspoon vanilla and 2 ½ tablespoons powdered sugar. Sprinkle abundantly with coconut over meringue and brown delicately in moderate oven.

No. 1—Balance a Coin or Card.

TO balance a coin, calling card or playing card on the back of the fingers seems a difficult feat, but it becomes quite simple when one knows the secret. A pin is held by the head between the two middle fingers, with the point extending to the back. The hand is held low beneath the table, and as it is brought up into view the card or coin is brought over by the other hand and held in front of the pin. A pretense is made of balancing the article, but in reality it is leaned against the pin. The other hand is lowered nearly to the table and as the coin is removed for inspection the fingers are spread and the pin drops unobserved to the floor.

TEN-SECOND MOVIE OF ANNIE MATHews. AN ELECTIVE OFFICE IN THE NEW YORK

"I am assuming office to prove to the voters that a great public office can be administered by a woman."

"I consider of especial importance the possession of good judgment and of executive ability."

"I believe in tolerance and in the encouragement of initiative."

"There is just one way to get men—and that is to get them much."

"I am NOT going to be fussy. My brothers and I've had experience with men in business. I know along."

New York's Woman Register 'Gets Along With Men' and Retains Them on Payroll

Miss Annie Mathews Is Tolerant and Not "Bossy" and Has Adopted Some Common-Sense Rules That Spur Up Male Subordinates' Initiative and Develop Fealty to Public.

By MARGUERITE MOORE.

GOOD judgment, executive ability, faithfulness, poise and tolerance. No fussiness. No bossiness.

It is by the exercise of these simple qualities, affirmative and negative, that Miss Annie Mathews, Register of New York County and the first woman to hold elective office in the city government, plans to administer that office and to direct the activities of her 140-odd subordinates—only nine of them women.

As simple and straightforward as her "platform" of public office management, with smiling blue eyes set wide apart and soft brown hair smoothed back from her pleasant face, I found Miss Mathews at her desk in the second floor of the Hall of Records.

"I am today assuming office," she had said, 24 hours earlier, "to prove to the voters that they made no mistake in their choice and that a great public office can be administered by a woman."

"How?" I asked her. "How are you going to run your office? What are your ideas as to its efficient management?"

"First, I think I have had the proper preparation," she explained. "I do not believe that a woman, however excellent her intentions, could step directly from her home into an important public office and administer it efficiently. I think that adequate business training is essential. Such training develops the judgment, gives poise and dignity, helps in the cultivation of executive ability."

"You know what that is. You know how differently two women can clean a room. One takes all day over it, dawdles and fusses, and still the work is not properly done. Another woman—you see," interpolated Miss Mathews with a smile, "I am a housekeeper as well as a business woman—another cleaner moves all the portable furniture out of the room. Then she covers up with dust cloths the objects that remain. Then she brings back the furniture, wipes off the dust, and in two hours the room is CLEAN! That shows what executive ability can accomplish."

"It isn't enough to do a thing; you must do it as quickly and efficiently as possible. In judging those who work with me I shall consider of especial importance their possession of good judgment of their own and of executive ability."

"And those who have such qualities I shall let alone—judiciously," added Miss Mathews. "They may do their work in their own way, without expecting me to spend all my time watching them, fussing over every detail. I believe in tolerance and in the encouragement of initiative."

It was then that Miss Mathews made it clear to me why she expects to get along perfectly well with the men subordinates in her office.

"You don't feel," I suggested, "that they will object to working for a woman? Or that they will try to 'put something over' on you?"

"Not for a moment," she answered, calmly. Then she shot a mischievous glance at her woman secretary.

"Don't you imagine," she suggested slyly, to both of us, "that it's the other way around? Don't you fancy they're wondering if I shan't try to 'put something over' on them?"

"They needn't think so," she answered her own question. "There is just one way to boss men—and that is not to boss them much."

"To hold a carrot in front of the donkey's nose?" I suggested.

Miss Mathews smiled diplomatically.

"To use suggestion and encouragement, rather than bossiness and fussiness," she amended. "I think men are so afraid of a woman's being fussy, making trouble about silly details, raising unnecessary issues. I am NOT—her soft voice capitalized the negative—"going to be fussy. I have brothers. I've had experience with men in business. During the last three years I've had experience with them in politics. We get along."

"And from what I hear, you're not going to be over-fussy about such details as the way women in your office dress," I suggested.

Miss Mathews shook a decisive head. She is not nearly so anxious as certain male employers to assume the role of clothes censor.

"I shan't put any taboo on bobbed hair, or short skirts, or any particular style," she averred. "All I ask of the women who work with me is that in their dress they show the quality of good judgment, which I expect from them on all occasions. In short,

they should dress appropriately—that is all."

"What do you think of W. L. George's idea of uniforms for women?" I questioned.

Miss Mathews curled a disdainful lip.

"Isn't it perfectly senseless!" she exclaimed. "I wouldn't wear a uniform if I had it given to me. I hope the day never comes when I see women in uniforms."

I asked Miss Mathews if she thought the head of an office should keep the same hours as his—or her—subordinates.

"Haven't you known a man to spend two hours a week in his office and yet to do as much work in that time as anyone else in the place?" she questioned in return. "On the other hand, I don't believe in special privilege for executives. A good rule seems to me, is to give to one's fellow-workers that same measure of faithfulness which one expects from them. There should be in each official of a department a sense of his importance to and responsibility for the success of the whole."

"Do you believe," I inquired finally, "that an increasing number of women can—and should—hold public office?"

"I've always looked forward to that," said Miss Mathews, who was a suffragist in the days when being one took courage, as well as good sense. "I hope women will gradually permeate politics and public life. But, of course, they have neither the desire, nor the equipment, nor the opportunity, to drive men out."

New York's new Register, you perceive carries no sex clip, nor sex shoulder. No wonder she isn't worried about getting along with those 131 male employees!

Chicken en Casserole.

CLEAN and wash one chicken, and truss it for boiling. Put it into a casserole with a lid, and add six peeled small white onions, one cup each of carrot and turnip cut in fancy shapes or in dice, one stick of celery cut in shreds, and two bay leaves. Heat one cut of stock or water, pour it over the top and put on the lid. Cook in a moderate oven for two hours, basting occasionally with the liquid. When ready, season with salt and pepper, untruss the bird and cut it into joints. Serve in the casserole. This is one of the easiest ways of cooking a chicken. A few pieces of tomato may be added if desired. Pigeons and other birds may be cooked in the same way.

The Magpell of a Woman Spy The Trintence and Execution of MATA-HARI THE DANCER

By Ferdinand Tuohy

FINAL INSTALLMENT.

WHEN we entered her cell Mata-Hari was wearing a chemise of coarse linen. "Petite Marie," said to the little sister who had attended her so faithfully, "pass a fine linen that we put aside." Pastor Darbois whispered something in her ear. "Yes, directly," replied. Then she dressed truly. "May I wear corsets?" she asked. "No, no," said the Governor, she added: "I also my lace cache-corset. No comb."

He knelt at the feet of the past and took a Jug, filled it with water, which he poured on the head of the while she, kneeling, continued to arrange her hair.

It was a sort of baptism. I did not understand this ceremony. I had heard it was a special rite practiced by certain Lutheran sect.

The guardians had put on her white boots. These were almost as high as her former luxury. "Now my gloves," she said. "I will slowly, carefully. Her hat was placed on her head.

"It suits me well, doesn't it?" she said to her lawyer. "I must have some hairpins. I have none," said the little sister Marie. "It is forbidden by regulations," explained the Governor.

Captain-Clerk Thibault stepped forward, paper and pencil in hand. "Me!" cried Mata, "I have nothing to say. And if I had, it would be to you that I would say it." She drew herself up, glaring at the officer with disdain.

Little Sister Marie burst in tears. "Don't cry Sister Marie, don't cry like me," said the pastor, "on the cheeks. 'How tiny are the Sister Marie. It would be to Sister Marie to make one Marie don't cry," she went on. "I am going on a long journey. I am going to return and I will be with you."

step a dozen riflemen—wounded men covered with scars—marched from the side of the square and stood in front of the prisoner.

A gendarme sought to fasten her to the tree by passing a cord around her waist. She protested. A nurse offered her a red handkerchief to bandage her eyes. She pushed it away. The pastor, who hides the stake from her view, makes his exit, his hand on his forehead.

Finally Pastor Darbois moves away. The officer raised his sword. "Ready."

Mata-Hari smiles. The last smile to her last audience! With her hand she threw kisses to her lawyer and the pastor.

The two sisters knelt, their hands clasped.

A report, one only for 12 rifle shots. Mata-Hari was on the ground at the foot of the tree. Her body was without tremor; no reflex movement. A Sergeant-Major fired the coup de grace. A command resounded to "dételle—forward—march!"

The trumpets rang out and the soldiers passed before the heap of skirts.

The two sisters who had continued to pray stood up. Petite Marie stepped forward and took a ring from the dead woman's finger. Supreme gift, no doubt, for the last lover.

"Does any one claim the body?" called the Captain-Clerk. I looked at the lawyer. Nobody! And the body mobile pulled up at a corner. First to get out was the pastor, tottering. Mata-Hari got down without help, turned and offered her arm to the two sisters. At this moment nobody would have been able to say who it was that was about to be shot. It might have been thought that it was the pastor.

Two gendarmes placed themselves by the side of Mata-Hari, but she ordered them away. "Come, Petite Marie, hold me firmly by the hand."

Three steps separated them from the troops.

"Present arms!" rang out the command of the officer.

Mata-Hari appeared very sensitive to this homage. An instant's pause, and then, with the air of a Princess reviewing a guard of honor awaiting her at the station—as had often happened when she accompanied the Crown Prince—she passed forward slowly, majestically, bowing slightly before the troops.

The trumpets of the artillerymen sounded a march. "Words and bayonets glistened in the limpid atmosphere."

Not far away a sparrow, looking on from its perch in a tree, began to chatter. It was bizarre. "Mata-Hari," in Indian, means bird of the morning.

The condemned woman was now no more than a dozen paces from the stake. Suddenly she said to the little Sister Marie. "Now it is finished. Loosen your grip." And with a brusque, nervous gesture she broke the clasp. Her lawyer embraced her. The pastor took his stand in front of her and the gendarmes pushed her gently toward the tree.

Captain-Clerk Thibault rapidly read the judgment. With athletic of the dancer of the hundred veils, so coveted, was thrown in a box of pine, then heaved in a van. I see yet the two old soldiers sitting on the coffin, philosophically smoking their pipes and gossiping with the two mounted gendarmes who followed.

Thus ended Marguerite Zella, known as Mata-Hari, at the age of 41.

In conclusion, the outcry against the play "La Danseuse Rouge" seems unwarrantable. Counsel for the accused pleads guilty on behalf of his client (which Mata-Hari's lawyer never did) and then proceeds to beg for mercy—which is not given, as it was rarely, if ever, accorded to convicted women spies in France during the war. A committee of veterans specially invited, have passed the play as sound, though the possibility that we shall in future always have to submit to the judgment of veterans in matters of this kind is rather formidable.

But the production of "La Danseuse Rouge" leading in turn to partial revelations surrounding that legendary figure, "Mata-Hari," is important in this respect. Things can hardly now be left where they are. The positive guilt of Mata-Hari, however strong the circumstantial evidence, is not established by what Maj. Massard has given out. That she probably wrote letters to her German Intelligence friends telling of gossip she had heard in the embrace of French Ministers of State

Fashion News Notes

By Cable and Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK.—The insular possessions of the United States are coming into their own at least in the lingerie markets. The development of the handicrafts of the Philippines and Porto Rico have been so thoroughly adapted to the styles now in vogue here that the January sales now in progress are laying special emphasis on lingerie produced in those islands. Exquisitely fine batiste, hand-embroidered, is the piece de resistance of these sets, the gowns of which are particularly attractive.

LONDON.—Snake-skin shoes are the latest fable of fashion here. The tough skins of the larger snakes when properly tanned are particularly adaptable to footwear and the intricate markings and distinctive colorings make remarkably striking designs for dainty footwear. The majority of the snake skins come from India and, as it is estimated that more than 25,000 persons there die yearly from snake bite, the supply would seem adequate.

NEW YORK.—The presence of whales in Long Island waters recently has occasioned no flurry among corset manufacturers, for whalebone as an adjunct to the molding of the female figure is rapidly going into innocuous desuetude. Elastic is taking the place of boning in many of the corset designs and all are comparatively lightly boned. In fact, many of the brassieres are entirely without boning. These are worn like a camisole, are easy tubed and yet give that straight, boyish slimness which the fashions of the day require. These are usually constructed of broche or satin.

More than 100,000 women in the United States are identified with the medical profession.

is extremely lively. But is there actual proof that she did? On the contrary, both the Ministers involved proclaim Mata-Hari asked them nothing pertaining to the war. To put things bluntly, the present revelations leave one with the suspicion that much is being hushed up in order to prevent the publication of information which would be most damaging to French Cabinets, present no less than past.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Bowser Turns Tail.

By Thornton W. Burgess

OLD MAN COYOTE didn't spend all his time under the stack of straw in Farmer Brown's barnyard. Oh, my, no! He was too clever for that. When the weather was good and there was a fair chance of good hunting in the Green Forest and on the Green Meadows, longed for green but white with snow, he would keep away from Farmer Brown's several days at a time. But when he had no luck hunting he would return to his hiding place under the straw and watch all that went on around Farmer Brown's house and yard.

Not since he had helped himself to that meat from Farmer Brown's basket had he had his stomach really full. He had hoped—oh, how he had hoped—that another basket with meat in it would be left where he could safely help himself. But nothing of the kind had happened. You know, it isn't often that such an opportunity does happen more than once. But Old Man Coyote never gave up hope that it would happen again.

As he watched from under that stack of straw his heart grew a little bitter. Yes, sir, it did so. Every day he was there he saw Bowser the Hound get a full meal while he himself went hungry.

"It isn't fair," said Old Man Coyote to himself. "No, sir, it isn't fair. That dog has all he wants to eat without ever even wondering where the food is to come from. He never has to think about his stomach. He never has to worry. He knows nothing of the fear of starving. But I must go hungry most of the time and work for every scrap I do get. If I could have one such meal a week as that dog has every day I would be perfectly happy."

Then Old Man Coyote set himself to trying to think of a way to get one of Bowser's fine meals away from him. He had done it once by leading Bowser over to the Green Forest and there giving him the slip, hurrying back in time to get that meal before Bowser got back. But that was too risky a plan to try often. At last an idea came to him. He grinned. "It is worth trying, anyway," said he to himself.

Just before dusk that night Old Man Coyote crept down the back of Farmer Brown's barn. Bowser the Hound heard him and at once went to look for him. As usual, Old Man Coyote ran and Bowser started after him with his nose in Old Man Coyote's trail, baying his joy in the chase. Old Man Coyote kept just a little ahead of him until they were out of sight from Farmer Brown's. Then, suddenly, Old Man Coyote turned, and with the ugliest of ugly-sounding snarls rushed straight at Bowser.

Bowser heard that snarl and looked up. What he saw was so surprising and unexpected that he didn't recognize Old Man Coyote at all. Rushing straight at him was a terrible creature with hair standing on end, eyes that seemed to flash fire and a mouthful of long, sharp teeth that snapped together in a way quite dreadful to hear. One good look was enough for Bowser. Then he turned, tucked his tail between his legs and made for home, yelping with fear.

Snapping at his heels and making dreadful noises ran Old Man Coyote. He could have caught Bowser without the least trouble had he wanted to. But he didn't want to. All he wanted was to scare Bowser, and this he surely was doing. Around the barn and straight for the house raced Bowser, as badly scared a dog as ever was. Old Man Coyote stopped back of the barn. His hair no longer stood on end. His eyes no longer flashed. He no longer showed his teeth, excepting in a grin.

"He knows now how it feels to be chased," chuckled Old Man Coyote. "One more good scare like that and I think I will be able to get a dinner from him now and then."

Prohibition Fruitcake.

TWENTY-FOUR hours before baking the cake, pour one cup of cider over four tablespoons of chopped candied orange peel, half a cup of chopped candied pineapple, one pound of chopped seeded raisins, half a pound of seedless raisins, half a pound of chopped candied cherries and one pound of seedless raisins. When ready to mix the cake, beat to a cream one cup of butter with one and a quarter cup of brown sugar, beat well and add the well-beaten yolks of six eggs. Sift two and a half cups of flour with two teaspoons of cinnamon, two teaspoons of allspice, two teaspoons of nutmeg and one teaspoon of mace and add to the butter and sugar mixture. Add the soaked fruits and half a pound of chopped blanched almonds, two squares of chocolate, grated, the stiffly beaten whites of the six eggs and half a cup of molasses. Mix well and just before putting in the paper-lined pans stir in a pinch of soda dissolved in a tablespoon of hot water. Cover pans with buttered paper and steam for four hours. Finish cooking in a very slow oven for two hours. If well wrapped in oily paper and placed in tight box this cake will keep indefinitely.

Paris Roll.

To one cup granulated sugar add five tablespoonfuls of milk. Stir over fire until it boils, then boil five minutes without stirring. Remove from fire, flavor with any desired flavoring, set dish into another dish of cold water and stir or beat constantly until thick. Add cold milk very slowly if it becomes too thick. Have roll ready filled with this layer of jelly or cream. Apply icing on outside and before it hardens roll the cake either in chopped nuts or cocoanut.

Turkey Rissoles.

Grind the meat very fine. Add an equal amount of fine bread crumbs, season with salt, pepper and summer savory to taste. Beat one egg and stir into the mixture to form a mass that can be molded into balls and try in hot fat.

A HIT ABOVE THE COLLAR LINE.

SOME years ago there was a colored stage hand at the Colonial Theater in Chicago who fancied himself a pugilist. He took lessons in sparring; he practiced shadow boxing until he could lick any shadow that ever lived; he sent his picture to the Police Gazette—in short, he did all that an aspiring and ambitious amateur does who hopes in time to become a professional. Presently he announced himself the all-weights champion of the Colonial Theater.

A musical comedy came along to play the Colonial. Included in its stage crew was a large, brawny person of Swedish antecedents who knew a thing or two about handling his fists.

The negro promptly challenged him for a fight and the stranger accepted the challenge. On the first Saturday night of the troupe's engagement a ring was fitted up back stage and here, after the performance, the bout was staged before an audience consisting of the members of the company, the theater staff and a few specially invited guests. For a joke, Jay Brady, the manager of the Colonial, acted as manager for the house entry. The leading comedian of the musical show sponsored the cause of the Swede.

The darky entered the ring resplendent in a gorgeous bathrobe, upon which he had squandered his entire week's wages. In response to the applause of his backers he bowed low this way and that, then sank back in his corner in the approved attitude. The stranger climbed through the ropes and hunched on a stool as though untired by the excitement of the moment and the importance of the issue. The referee called time. The two men advanced to the center of the ring. The darky led, feinted, tapped out daintily and deftly for an opening and then swung. The Swede started a haymaker from his knees. His padded fist whizzed upward through the air and as the darky ducked it landed on the side of his head with a terrific thump.

The negro landed upon his back half way through the ropes. Even in this sudden and unforeseen catastrophe, though, he did not lose his wits.

"Mister Brady," he yelled, "claim a foul—claim a foul! Dat man hit me a delib'it brain blow!"

MORE TRUTH THAN POETRY

By James J. Montague.

THE RETURN OF AN OLD FRIEND.

We find but scant reality
In dramas of rascality
Which lack the bold vitality
Of loudly spoken speech.
When crooks, their lock foraking them—
Their friends and fortune shaking them,
Find fate is overtaking them
We like to hear 'em screech.

When maidens shriek appealingly,
When infants cry out squealingly,
And villains curse unfeelingly,
We're always moved to tears;
The clarion note of bravery,
The spattering hiss of knavery,
We deem extremely flavory—
They're music to our ears.

The movie play amuses us,
But always it refuses us
The heart thrill that endures us
To hoarse, approving hoots.
It may be educational,
It often is sensational,
But it's not inspirational,
To watch a lot of mutes.

But now we're going to hear again,
The hiss in full career again,
And we may sit and cheer again
As loudly as the claque.
The hero's strident spluttering,
The villain's mordant muttering,
We'll hear, with hearts a-fluttering—
The melodrama's back!
